German Proposal to Bar Aircraft Bombing Is Rejected at Geneva

Geneva — (AP) — Germany's proposal for the prohibition of aircraft bombing in war time was rejected today by the preparatory commission on disarmament of the league of nations. Out of 52 national delegations at the conference only 5 countries supported the proposal.

However, in refusing to insert the bomb prohibition clause in the draft treaty which the commission is formulating, the delegations voting against the proposal accepted a subsequent resolution offered by Nicolas Politis of Greece, affirming that they had no intention of authorizing the dropping of bombs on civilian populations.

London — (AP) — Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, told the house of commons today that the British government shared fully the hopes and wishes of the United States government on disarmament as set forth in Ambassador Gibson's speech at Geneva on Monday.

"The government desires me to take this opportunity to express its warm appreciation of the cordial conciliatory spirit shown by the American delegate and give assurance on its behalf that in the same spirit and with the most earnest wish to reach a complete understanding, it will consider the American suggestions," declared Sir Austen.

Sir Austen made his statement in answer to a question by Commander Joseph Kenworthy, Laborite, whether Ambassador Gibson's speech had been called to his attention and what response his majesty's government proposed.

FAVOR REDUCTION
"As was at once stated by my noble friend, Lord Cushtendun, began Sir Austen, 'this majesty's government shares to the full the hopes and wishes of the government of the United States as therein set forth. His majesty's government, equally with the government of the United States, desire not merely a limitation but a reduction of naval armaments."

"They have indeed themselves made proposals for such a general reduction and that the reduction should be applied to every class of armament, to the publicists of the United States, such difference as has hitherto existed has not been concerned with these great principles, not with the relative strength of our respective navies, but with determination of the categories into which ships of war should be divided."

"On this point his majesty's government have noted with much interest the new criteria suggested by Mr. Gibson. They attach great importance to the publicists of the United States, such difference as has hitherto existed has not been concerned with these great principles, not with the relative strength of our respective navies, but with determination of the categories into which ships of war should be divided."

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Bell Wambach, had planned to return Monday night to Rock Island.

Would Reinstate Farm Aid Equalization Fee

Washington — (AP) — As the house set itself today to complete its farm relief bill, Senator Copeland, a New York Democrat, proposed to eliminate the export debenture plan from the senate bill and to reinstate the equalization fee of the McNary-Haugen bill which caused two vetoes of that measure by President Coolidge.

Chairman Haugen of the house agriculture committee, informed his colleagues that it was the hope of his committee that the house measure might be completed before adjournment. In the senate, however, the way was not so smooth. The senate wishes of President Hoover to eliminate the export debenture plan against the McNary-Haugen bill.

Dike Break Maroons 20 In Illinois

Quincy, Ill. — (AP) — Twenty persons were left marooned on the levee along the South Quincy Gardens this morning as a new breach in the wall, which occurred at 7 o'clock this morning, widened from 66 feet to 100 feet before noon. A steel bottom boat was being rushed from Keokuk, Ia., to aid in the rescue.

Water from the Mississippi river was pouring in fast and the entire South Quincy Gardens district was expected to be under water before night.

The 200 residents of the district were warned immediately after the break this morning and most of them vacated at once. The 20 marooned on the levee were unable to beat the on-rushing waters. The river fell six-tenths of a foot between the time of the break and noon.

At noon the water was lapping about 30 homes, newly constructed last fall and valued at approximately $150,000. The inundation covers 5,000 acres.

HEAD OF PULLMAN FIRM SUCCEUMBS IN ILLINOIS

Chicago — (AP) — Edward F. Carry, president of the Pullman company, died at his Lake Shore drive residence this morning.

Death was ascribed to cerebral embolism. Mr. Carry was 62 years old and had been president of the Pullman company since 1922.

Entering the foundry business in his early manhood he advanced quickly to the vice presidency of the American Foundry company which he left in 1915 to head the Haskell and Barker car company. From this enterprise he was called seven years ago to direct the Pullman company.

His wide experience in shipping called his talents into the services of the United States Shipping board during the war.

COMPLAINT AGAINST BELL IS DISMISSED

Al Smith's Defeat Seen As Curry Rules Tammany

New York — (AP) — Selection of John F. Curry, an opponent of Alfred E. Smith, as head of Tammany hall was interpreted by newspapers today as marking the passing of the influence of the former governor.

The election of Curry, a district leader, to succeed George O. Olvany, resigned, also was described as a victory for Mayor James J. Walker, which has established him as the dominating influence in Tammany with his renomination assured.

FORMER COP SAYS HE SAW TRIO AT WORK

David Dotz Identifies Tarello as Prosecutor's Home Bomber

Kenosha — (AP) — Angelo Tarello, on trial in circuit court here on charges of complicity in the burglary of the Kenosha theatre last December, today not only was accused of being the instigator of that crime but also of having bombed the home of former Wist. Atty. Lewis W. Powell on May 22, 1928.

Those charges were made from the witness stand today by David Dotz, former rookie policeman already found guilty of complicity in the robbery and now being held with his brother, Alex, pending hearing on a motion for a new trial.

Dotz stated that he was a cab driver at the time of the bombing. On that night, he said, he saw Tarello's car pull up in front of the Powell home. Two men got out, went into the yard and then rushed back into the car and drove off. A moment later there was an explosion.

FOLLOWED AUTO
Dotz said that he followed the car, noting that the man got off at the North Shore line station while the other two went on to a road house. He declared that he was positive that Tarello was one of the trio, because, he said, he had several opportunities to see him that night.

He gave this information to the district attorney several days later. Soon after he went to work for the Pinkerton Detective agency, he said. It was then that he identified Tarello from a photograph.

The story of the bombing was brought out under cross-examination of the defense counsel in an attempt to question the veracity of the witness. Following this, the defense asked that the testimony be stricken from the record because no warrant had ever been issued for Tarello, in connection with the bombing. The motion was overruled.

Dotz also testified that Tarello several times had offered him a considerable sum of money if he would not testify against him. This was corroborated by the testimony of Arthur Metten who was in the company of Tarello at the time that Tarello and the Dotz brothers were.

He said that he heard Tarello offer Dotz enough money to obtain his freedom on bond and leave the city with his family to "start anew" elsewhere.

SKIPPER IN RIVER TRAGEDY IS DEAD

Was Both Praised and Blamed for Conduct When Sea Wing Sank in 1890

Prescott — (AP) — Death has claimed Captain David Weather, skipper of the steamer Sea Wing, and the central figure in one of the greatest tragedies on the upper Mississippi river.

Captain Weather died peacefully at the home of his son, Roy, here, 39 years after his first steambot, the Sea Wing, had capsized and foundered in a terrific storm on Lake Pepin in 1890 with a loss of 97 lives.

Both blamed and praised for his part in the tragedy, Captain Weather lost his pilot's license as a result of the disaster, but later he was granted a new license. He subsequently built and operated several other vessels, including a new Sea Wing.

It was a brilliant Sunday, July 13, when the Sea Wing, with a barge lashed alongside, started from Diamond bluff, above Red Wing, Minn., with 170 persons aboard, bound for the national guard encampment below Lake City. The trip was made without incident.

Prevented from starting the return trip earlier by failure of his passengers to return from the military maneuvers and entertainment, the Sea Wing began her homeward journey at 8 o'clock in the evening, just above Lake City a gust of wind struck the craft.

As the vessel heeled over under the forces of the wind, Captain Weather explained later, a member of the crew, without authority, cut the barge loose and in a moment the Sea Wing, tossed by the storm, capsized and later sank. The barge was driven ashore and all aboard it were saved, but on the boat many of the passengers were trapped in the cabin and drowned.

NEW BOOTLEG GANG STRIFE IN CLEVELAND

Gangsters Kill Two — and Also Declare War of Revenge on Police

Cleveland — (AP) — Defiant gangsters today opened a war of revenge on Cleveland police and at the same time split in fatal hostility among themselves, according to Detective Chief Cornelius Cody.

Dynamite bombs exploded at the home of Police Captain William A. McLaughlin and at the recent residence of Sergeant Patrick J. Holland. Shortly afterwards, two men, tentatively identified as "Skinny" Furstenman and Isadore Ehrlich, were slain in what police said was an upheaval of enmity between rival factions of bootleggers.

The bomb explosions injured no one, but at the McLaughlin home, part of the porch was torn away and all windows in the neighborhood were shattered. Mrs. McLaughlin and two children, William Jr., and Ruth, were severely shaken. At the former residence of Sergeant Holland, a four-apartment building, frame porches were ripped off, windows were broken, and occupants of the building were hurled from their beds by the force of the blast.

BRUTAL KILLINGS
Furstenman and Shiller had been "taken for a ride" and dumped from the killers' automobile in typical gangster style. Detective Chief Cody said after opening investigation of the case.

The killing of Furstenman and Shiller was one of the most brutal in the annals of Cleveland police records. Ropes had been twisted about the necks of both men, twisting and dislocating the neck bones. A slouching pile had been driven into the heads of each. The ice pick was left, with its handle broken off, in the skull of Shiller.

Both Furstenman and Shiller had long criminal records.

Shiller, 42, began his career of dodging police at Duluth, Minn., in 1912. He served 30 days there in a workhouse on a vagrancy charge.

BISHOP ISN'T SURPRISED BY WISCONSIN WET VOTE

New York — (AP) — Bishop James Cannon, Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal church south, is "not surprised" at the result of the recent Wisconsin referendum on state enforcement of prohibition.

Arriving from Europe today on the steamer Olympic, he said: "It is no surprise to me. Milwaukee has always prided itself on a product which the eighteenth amendment does not permit to be manufactured. They want beer, and their habits are not easily changed."

He declined to be disturbed by Congressman H. L. Laguardia's message to him yesterday aboard ship asking "why he traveled on a wet ship instead of a dry one."

The bishop admitted having received the wireless but did not know whether he would answer it or not. He characterized the messages "as attempts to seduce the spectacle."

Bishop Cannon is chairman of the board of temperance and social service of his church. He said he did not know what difference it made as to what ship a man sails on "if he has business abroad."

MICHIGAN MINER DIES UNDER TONS OF ORE

Iron River, Mich. — (AP) — The fourth mine fatality of the year in Iron-ore occurred at the Culebras mine at Crystal Falls Tuesday when Kalle Tuomola, 34, was killed. Kohler left today aboard a nine-car special train to attend the La Follette movement unrolling in Statuary hall, Washington, Thursday afternoon. The statue, by J. Davidson, will rest with Wisconsin's other contribution to the hall, a memorial to Father Marquette.

The train is used to disseminate mineral solutions into their various elements and is the result of 11 years of experimentation.

New Concern Buys Site For Theatre

Acme Land Co. Sells to Building Company Which Leases Property

The real estate and the building at the corner of N. Oneida and the Midway was sold late Tuesday by the Acme Land Co. to the Appleton Building Co., a holding concern of outside capital, which is to erect a theater building. At the same time the Appleton Building Co. leased the real estate and the building to be erected to the Mid-Vesco Co., which will operate the theater. The sale price of the property was not announced.

The Acme Land Co. is made up of three stockholders, J. L. Jacquet, president; H. H. Benton, vice president, and George H. Beckley, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Beckley closed the deal for the company. It is understood that the Appleton Building Co. is controlled by the Immed Construction Co. of Fond du Lac which has the contract to build the theater.

It was reported from Fond du Lac that details of the lease to the Mid-Vesco Co. have not all been worked out and neither has the architect definitely determined on the building to be erected here. It is understood that there are four alternative plans for the theater building and one probably will be selected in a short time. The building, whatever its seating capacity, will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000.

The buildings on the property which runs west from Oneida to the Walter Motor Co. property and north from the Midway to the Wisconsin Midland Co., lot have been idle for several months while arrangements for wrecking the structures were being completed. It was stated at the office of the Immed Construction Co. that the task of razing the buildings will not be started until all building details have been determined. The company would not hazard a guess when this will be done.

$200,000 FIRE AT WAUSAU FACTORY

Wisconsin Box Company Plant Is Destroyed—Origin of Flames Unknown

Wausau — (AP) — A spectacular fire which attracted thousands destroyed the Wisconsin Box company factory here late last night with an estimated loss of $200,000.

What caused the fire in the large plant could not be determined, but firemen today dug through a twisted mass of steel and wood in an effort to find out. No one was in the building when the flames first were seen by the fire department and all available equipment was rushed to the building, but the fire had such a good start that efforts were concentrated chiefly on keeping it from spreading to adjoining buildings and lumber yards.

A brick fire wall, near the end of the frame building, stopped the fire and 12 streams of water played on the burning structure kept flames within. Just a few feet away was a lumber yard with thousands of feet of wood and firemen waged a battle to save it. The fact there was no wind helped them.

The building, of wood construction, is about 40 feet high, 250 feet long and 100 feet wide. On the outskirts of the city, it was built 35 years ago and was considered one of the largest and most completely equipped in Wisconsin. New machinery recently had been installed and this was ruined. About 125 men were employed and the company did not appear to know whether they would be retained for work in its retail yard.

The flames, leaping high in the air and visible all over the city and in the country surrounding, drew more than 5,000 persons to the fire and streets were blocked as motorists parked their cars nearby to watch.

WOMAN, 92, HAS HAIR BOBBED ON BIRTHDAY

Chicago — (AP) — Mrs. Jane Elizabeth McLaughlin had her hair bobbed and got a "permanent" today to celebrate in the modern manner her 92nd birthday. It was a definite gesture endorsing her rule of life: "Love with high ideals and go along with the young folks and you'll never grow old."

Mrs. McLaughlin believes that the Indians who used to harass the white folks hereabouts were more dangerous even than the present day Chicago gangsters.

ILLINOIS SENATE FOR INCOME TAX BY STATE

Springfield — (AP) — The state income tax bill was passed in the Illinois State senate today by a vote of 27 to 19. Chicago senators voted solidly against it. The tax would be 1 per cent on all incomes exceeding $5,000 a year. The bill now goes to the house.

GIL ANXIOUS PENDING WORD FROM CALLES

Bitter Struggle With Rebels in Sonora Reported on for 48 Hours

Mexico City — (AP) — Undisputed tension prevailed today at Chapultepec castle, presidential headquarters, as word was awaited from General Calles in extreme southern Sonora, where a bitter fight with rebels was believed to have been underway for 48 hours.

SILENT ON SITUATION NATION WONDERS WHETHER MYSTERY WAS CREATED AT PRESIDENTIAL CASTLE

Considerable mystery surrounded the situation at Masica and San Antonio, Sonora, where the rebel army of 6,000 or 7,000 men was reported entrenched, but whether this mystery was of Chapultepec's making — with an eye to awaiting more favorable reports — or actual lack of information was not known.

There were no recent messages from General Calles, believed to have advanced northward out of San Blas with his troops. The last received from him told of movement of three federal columns against the rebel earthworks, with a force of 2,000 federal cavalry under General Talamantes considerably in advance of the main army.

These last dispatches told of an attempt to flank movement under General Rabat, who had left Masica in the division of Chos northernmost Sinaloa. In a seeming effort to get the rear of the federal army, General Calles said a force had been sent to engage the rebels and thwart their plan.

The federal cavalry moving north on Don toward Masica left camp at 3 o'clock Monday morning and should have reached the rebel lines by daybreak, the distance being but 100 miles. The force sent to cut off General Rabat was expected to clash with him Monday night.

INSECT BITES BLAMED FOR 4 DEATHS ON SHIP

Chebourg, France — (AP) — The steamship Duchess of Atholl, homeward bound after a four months' world cruise, arrived at Chebourg today saddened by the deaths of four passengers, all Americans, who succumbed aboard ship a little over three weeks ago.

Malignant malaria, attributed to insect bites during an overland trip in Africa, was held responsible for the deaths.

Although some of the other passengers had suffered from the same fever, three of them severely, the whole ship's company was in good health when the liner called at Chebourg where 100 of her 295 passengers disembarked.

Some of these had exciting stories to tell of being marooned without food and water and all drenched to the skin for 18 hours in Kruger National park where their party was trapped by a sudden rise of two rivers. Three of the four passengers who died were members of this overland party as were two of the three others who fell seriously ill.

"The cause of death in two cases was malaria and sunstroke and in the other two cases malaria," said a statement by officials.

SAYS SUPERIOR FACES DEFICIT OF $70,000

Superior — (AP) — City Comptroller C. N. O'Hare declared today that the city of Superior will face a deficit of $70,000 at the end of the fiscal year in October unless stringent economy measures are adopted immediately by the city's new administration.

The city has about $200,000 left in its general budget which with collectable taxes will carry it through the remainder of the year if current expenses are reduced about 20 per cent, O'Hare said.

He declared that the late Baxter administration spent unusually large sums on municipal projects during the last ten days of its regime, leaving the present administration financially embarrassed.

FIDDLE WON'T BEHAVE SO CHAMP LOSES CROWN

Columbus — (AP) — An old fiddle played tricks on L. A. Harrison here last night and so he lost the title of champion fiddler of the United States that he had won at Sarasota, Fla., three years ago.

Harrison had hardly started to play when strings began to slip, chords went false, tones were flat, and all rhythm was lost as he tried to remedy the situation.

However, he lost to another old master of the bow, Matt Hays, Portage, champion of Wisconsin and Minnesota, who won the lion's share of the $300 purse and a gold medal.

Former Appleton Men Held For Taking Liquor Bribe

NAB EX-DRY AGENT WHEN TAKES MONEY

Ira Billington, Held in Milwaukee Jail, Made Home Here

Investigation here disclosed that Ira Billington, 32, under arrest in Milwaukee for accepting a bribe of $297 for influencing his testimony, had made Appleton his home for a few months last winter after he had been discharged from the federal prohibition service.

Billington's home is in Red Granite, Wis., it was learned. He had been employed by the federal prohibition department to secure evidence against law violators, receiving $5 a day for his services when he worked, but he had been dismissed from the service some time before he came to Appleton. Billington now is held in jail in Milwaukee.

Billington was arraigned before U. S. court commissioner Harry L. Kellogg in Milwaukee, his bail set at $1,000 and a preliminary hearing set for Thursday. He was arrested on complaint of Strat Petropoulos, who is scheduled for arraignment on a liquor charge.

During the yesterday afternoon session of court Petropoulos told U. S. District Attorney Levi H. Bancroft that Billington offered to change his testimony against the defendant for $300 and that he would go to Detroit and "fix" another former prohibition agent of the Milwaukee office.

The arrest of Billington, who went to Milwaukee from Appleton and volunteered to get evidence for the agents at the rate of $5 a day for his services, was brought about when the district attorney instructed that the deal be completed by having Billington receive the "bribe."

Petropoulos left the Milwaukee federal building with Billington to some place where the money could be paid. A secret service man and Petropoulos' attorney trailed them, however, and arrested Billington as he was receiving the payment.

W. Frank Cunningham, deputy prohibition administrator, declared that the man had not been working for the department since last July and that his promise of changing testimony could not be carried out because he had never been used as a witness.

Billington was paid at the rate of $5 a day for information brought into the prohibition office and the periods of employment varied from day to day.

RESIDENT FISHERMEN DO NOT NEED LICENSE

Resident fishermen are not required by state law to purchase a fishing license, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk, who said his office has been flooded during the last week with calls from persons who thought they needed a license. Mr. Hantschel pointed out that the bill proposing to set up fishing licenses for resident fishermen had only been passed by the state assembly and that it still needed to be passed by the state senate and signed by the governor before it became a law.

Founder's Grandson Honored

Bishop Lawrence Is Pleased With College

Bishop William Lawrence, 79 years old, son of the founder of Lawrence college, Tuesday viewed for the first time the institution established here by his father.

Following an active day, including an address to students and townspeople at convocation in the chapel in the morning and visits about the campus during the afternoon, Bishop Lawrence said he was pleasantly surprised at both the size and beauty of the institution.

"The college has grown far beyond the greatest expectations of my father," he said. "How surprised he would be if he could see the result of his efforts here. Of course I had a mental picture of Lawrence from pictures and literature I received, but the first-hand picture has even surpassed my former conception of the college."

Bishop Lawrence commended the plan of extending the campus across the river. After the college grows, the campus will be as large on one side of the river as the other, and the resulting layout will be ideal, he thought.

The plan also will tend to separate men and women students, he pointed out. Although he is not opposed to coeducation, he does not think students should be associated as closely as they now are.

When Amos A. Lawrence, father of Bishop Lawrence, established what is now Lawrence college, he intended that it should be an academy, patterned after such institutions in the east, Bishop Lawrence recalled.

Bishop Lawrence approved the policy of Lawrence college in adher-

LITTLE HOPE FOR CHILD BURNED TWO WEEKS AGO

The condition of Leona Martin, 4-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Martin, near Shiocton, who was burned two weeks ago, is growing more serious, according to her physician, and hopes for her recovery are decreasing.

The child was burned when her clothing caught fire while she was playing with matches at her home. The parents were absent at the time of the accident, and a 7-year old brother extinguished the flames with a pail of water. So much of the child's body was burned that little hope was held out for her life.

HEINEMANN FINDS FLAWS IN NEW LAW FOR DELINQUENTS

Says Juvenile Judge, Not State Board, Should Have Responsibility

The new law dealing with delinquent and illegitimate children, mother's pensions and child labor was reviewed by Judge Fred Heinemann before members of Rotary club Tuesday noon at Hotel North-east.

Judge Heinemann, who is a member of the committee of three of the Wisconsin judiciary to work with the legislators in connection with the law, expressed himself as being not entirely satisfied with the law.

The clause dealing with illegitimacy, he stated, appears to condone rather than punish offenders, and places too much responsibility upon the state board of control, rather than on the local juvenile courts. Sneaking of the mothers' pension clause he explained how the new law places the administration of these funds in the hands of only the mother or stepmother, when court experience has proved that in many cases other administrators would be better.

He also scored the new law's procedure for adoption of children. An investigation by members of the state board of control now is required, whereas experience shows that a court officer residing in a community has better sources of information than members of the board.

The judge explained his policy in regard to incorrigible children. He termed them "naughty" children, and stated that he believed it far better to train their thoughts along more moral lines than to punish them, and that therefore he was greatly in sympathy with the parole system.

According to Judge Heinemann "naughty" boys are easier to deal

LEGIONAIRES PLAN FOR JULY 4 FETE

Report on Activities Given at Executive Committee Meeting

Plans for the July 4 celebration here were discussed by members of the executive committee of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion at a meeting Tuesday evening at the Conway hotel. The committee also heard a report from the flower and garden committee which will beautify the triangle at the end of S. Cherry-st.

An amateur boxing card, the state motorcycle association races and probably a baseball game will headline the athletic events being carded for the celebration, according to present plans. There also will be numerous means of entertaining children and a complete program of events such as usually are carded for an oldtime July 4 celebration.

The flower and garden committee will meet Wednesday evening with members of the street and bridge committee of the city council to discuss plans for beautifying the S. Cherry-st. triangle. If the city puts curbside around the triangle the legion has plans for beautifying the tract.

Reports on membership activities of the post show that 622 veterans have signed to date. There still are about 19 vets needed to beat last year's record.

It also was reported at the meeting that the post will try to stage an amateur boxing program here in May. Arrangements now are being made to secure a franchise and license to hold the bouts.

HOOVER PLEA MORE LIKE SERMON THAN SKETCH OF POLICY

Many of Audience Startled by Statement on Extent of Crime in U. S.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1929 by Post Pub. Co.

New York—It was a strange Herbert Hoover who addressed the Associated Press appealing through the publishers for support of law enforcement. Shy, almost timid, depending not at all on rhetorical effect, Mr. Hoover gave to his audience the impression of a man overwhelmed with the responsibility of what he called the most dominant issue before the nation.

There was hardly a smile on the face of the president except when an outburst of applause came at the end of the speech. It was a solemn address—more like a sermon than an exposition of public policy. If any one had any doubt that Herbert Hoover felt deeply about the importance of law enforcement, such doubt must have been removed as he weighed carefully his words and uttered the theory of executive responsibility.

Fully aware that he could not take a critical attitude toward the press without destroying to some extent the effectiveness of his appeal for cooperation, Mr. Hoover adopted a tone of supplication. Only by inference did he touch on the recent glorification of Texas Guinan and others accused of violating the prohibition laws in New York City but he did nevertheless call attention to the romance that had been given to the acts of the gangsters and the undercurrent of hostility which had been shown toward prohibition agents and prosecutors.

REACTION ON PRESS

When Mr. Hoover declared that there was a crime wave in America unparalleled in the world and that prohibition was only a part of it, he made a statement startling to many of his hearers. There was, on the other hand, a general feeling that prohibition had contributed a good deal to the crime wave. Many of the New York newspapers editorially agreed with the president's conception of law enforcement, but those who have been supporting the wet side of the argument insist there is a shorter road to law enforcement and respect for institutions and that it lies in amending or modifying the existing laws. Mr. Hoover takes the view, however, that it is proper for any one who is on the wet side to agitate for the repeal and that newspapers should not directly or indirectly encourage law violation. Although he did not specifically name the newspapers he did refer to statements in responsible journals which he construes to have the effect of encouraging a defiance of law. It is known that he has referred to this in recent conversations at the White House with callers.

There is an interesting line of thought expressed by some editors who profess to see further than the law enforcement question and that is a feeling that Mr. Hoover himself will some day assume leadership in urging a modification. It is not likely to come, however, until after a national commission has reported on the facts and suggested remedies. Meanwhile the president does not feel that it is his duty to take the leadership on the question of repeal or modification. He contends that his main job is to take the law as he finds it and bring about enforcement and that if it is a bad law the surest way to repeal is to enforce it.

The editors gave Mr. Hoover a splendid reception, applauding him for several minutes at the start of his speech and giving him an enthusiastic demonstration at its close. From the point of view of delivery the speech was not as effective as some speeches Mr. Hoover has made. It was, however, quietly forceful as well as dramatic in its solemnity. And Mr. Hoover left the impression of a man deeply in earnest, conscientious and determined to do his duty as an executive charged with the enforcement of the law.

Miss Adelle Steinhauer, the Misses Isabel and Katherine Keller spent Sunday at Oshkosh, guests of Miss Clara Paulick.

"Cut-Off" Recommended As Good Fishing Ground

BY B. A. CLAFIN

I devote considerable effort to getting reliable dope on fishing localities which I set forth in my weekly articles, and I want my readers to be assured that whatever information I set forth is reliable so far as it is humanly possible to make it. Practically all of the places I write about I visit personally and therefore write about them from first-hand knowledge and not hearsay.

The younger fishermen should not feel disappointed, however, if they visit one of the places I describe and do not meet with the success they expect. The more experienced angler is well aware that conditions have much to do with results achieved. Fish may strike greedily today in a certain water, and tomorrow, for some reason, refuse all offerings.

Last season I personally made a trip to the "Cut-off" on the Wolf river below New London and the party I took with me had some real sport with the big pike and a number of fine bass. Upon my return I wrote up for the benefit of my readers a description of how to get to the "Cut-off" and what we caught there, what lures we used, etc. The result was that some 50 cars visited the place the following Sunday, according to Fergot, who rents boats to the fishermen. The day was a cold, raw one and, while some fish were taken, the sport was hardly in keeping with that which we enjoyed. The fish were there, however, and I "blazed the trail." Try it again this season.

NEVER CROWDED

In my wanderings last season I came across an excellent place which does not appear to be crowded at any time, if we are to believe what we are told. Nor does it seem to be very well known. I refer to Lake Nokomis. This lake is on old highway 10 seven miles north of Tonawanda. "Hank's Place" is the only resort I noted. Boats and accommodations may be had at reasonable rates. There are acres and acres of water filled with partly submerged stumps, ideal places for the big northern pike and bass. And they are there, too. We caught some very fine specimens, but were obliged to return most we caught because of having no use for them. There is so much territory to be fished that an army could scarcely crowd it.

The roads we encountered in this region were about the finest of our whole trip. Highway 91 from Tonawanda down along the Wisconsin river to Merrill is absolutely perfect and the scenery along the way is not hard to look at.

Local owners of private passenger automobiles whose cars have not been involved in accidents and who have not within the last two years been convicted of any major violations of motor vehicle laws can obtain a 10 per cent reduction in the cost of their automobile public liability and property damage insurance, according to word received here by several local insurance men representing various insurance companies.

The plan applies to car owners, whether previously insured or not, who can comply with the qualifications. ISLAND PROPERTY
STILL INUNDATED;
NO RELIEF SEEN

City Officials Expect to Rush
Improvement Program on West End

Neenah—The flooded conditions existing on the west end of the island still are evident, and no relief appears to be in sight. Efforts for relief have been fruitless and all that appears to remain for the property owners in that section of the city is to wait until the water recedes. People residing there find it hard to get provisions or fuel delivered to them as owners of auto delivery trucks are not prone to venture upon the premises as boats or hip boots are necessary to make deliveries.

Government officials have been appealed to but there seems to be nothing that can be accomplished. In some places the water is running through collars on its way down the river, the current even making it impossible to take a boat from the house to the barn. Reports from property owners indicate that the water now is higher than it has been for some time. People owning gardens, will be unable to raise vegetables this year as the yards are under two and three feet of water. Dangerous health conditions are feared when the water gets down to normal.

City officials claim that this year has been the worst in many years and that conditions existing there will hurry on the improvement plan which the city has planned.

LUECKENBACH QUILTS
AS ASSESSOR AND STOMMEL IS NAMED

Former Official Resigns Position Because of Ill Health

Menasha—The resignation of Herman Lueckenbach, city assessor, who has been ill for several months, was presented to the common council at a special meeting called by Mayor W. E. Held Tuesday night and was accepted. Mayor Held appointed Joseph Stommel to fill his unexpired term and the council affirmed the appointment.

Walter J. Dougherty, city bookkeeper, acted as clerk in the absence of John Jedwabny, who is attending a legislative hearing at Madison.

The Menasha Record was designated as the official newspaper for the coming year. Upon motion of Alderman Omachinski it was decided to print 200 booklets containing the names of new officers of the city of Menasha and have them ready for distribution as soon as possible. Mayor Held appointed as members of the park board W. H. Nelson, George Banta, Jr., L. J. Ellinger, George A. Leoscher, John Schreiber, Jacob Lehl and Emil Schultz and the appointments were affirmed by the council.

A communication from Hugh L. Gear, president of the Gear Dairy company, was to the effect that the company is about to build a new dairy plant at a considerable expense and requested that the city reduce the taxes for the next five years. Upon motion of Alderman Kelly the communication was laid over until the next regular meeting.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the mayor and common council with the street committee to advertise for bids for the removal and sale of all rails and brick and other material of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company right-of-way which now belongs to the city through a recent bill of sale, and also to advertise for bids for repaving the right-of-way which the resolution claims is in a dangerous condition.

A bid for water rental belonging to Mrs. Doehlich in which she claimed an overcharge was referred after a lengthy discussion on water bills generally to the water and light committee to bring in a report at the next meeting. Upon motion of Alderman Baldwin the superintendent of water and light distribution, who was absent from the meeting, was called upon to explain why there are so many overcharges in the water-bills, as claimed.

Alderman Kolaskinski wanted to know the reason for so much overtime work being put by some of the employees of the utility plant and whether they were competent to do the work assigned them. Mayor Held assured the council that the overtime work was performed and that the employees were qualified to do it. He said he had kept in close touch with their work and with their extra hours which included the rewiring of switchboards as well as street and plant work and found nothing wrong whatever. Mr. Dougherty, bookkeeper, who was acting as temporary clerk, was called upon to explain the overtime.

Mayor Held said he had received complaints from the public library, Hotel Menasha and some of the business men relative to dust on the north end of Mill-st. caused by the heavy traffic. He has taken the matter up with the street commissioner and instead of using oil has decided to try out a new process which is said to be satisfactory wherever adopted. It is in the form of a coarse powder which keeps the dust down by drawing the moisture out of the air. It will be here within a day or two and will be applied as soon as it arrives, according to the mayor.

Alderman M. J. Grode took exception to the left turn of traffic from Mill-st. to Main-st. at the north end of the former street and favored its discontinuance before there is a fatal accident. He favored a right turn along the canal at the north end of Mill-st. bridge, but Mayor Held said he would be opposed to the change unless an officer was stationed there to direct traffic. He said before the present plan was adopted he took pains to observe traffic and that he saw three near accidents in one evening making the sharp turn at the end of the bridge. That convinced him that the present plan is safer, he said.

PLENTY OF ACTION
WHEN ROMEO FLEES
SWEETHEART'S HOME

Milwaukee—(AP)—An errant Romeo whose sweetheart attempted suicide when his love turned cold, today was safe after being rescued by the police from the girl's home where he had been held captive for three days.

The police interference came as young man's friends were gathering around an assault on the stronghold where he was held and after the rescue, hostilities were transferred to the police station where the police played no role as mediators and the opposing factions tried to indulge in a free for all fight.

The young man is Carl Puccinelli, 22, of Miss Regina Jacobowski, 25, of three years.

Last week the girl took poison in an unsuccessful attempt to end her life, an act attributed by her relatives to Carl's waning ardor. On Sunday Regina's brothers captured Carl and held him at her home in an attempt to make him change his mind. Last night Carl's friends attempted a rescue. Then the police came. At the station everybody fought at once.

The captain of police finally ejected everybody.

"See the district attorney," he advised. "See the mayor—see anybody, but just remember I ain't no Solomon."

MRS. PHILIP GAVIN

TORNADO SEASON IS IN MARCH AND APRIL, WARNING

Destructive Spring Storms Are Listed by Nature Association

Washington — This is the tornado season, for there are seasons for storms just as there are for roses and sweet corn. The dust storm that came a few days ago is but an example of down out of the Gobi desert 3500 miles away and smothered Shanghai a few days ago is but an example of what wind can do, says the American Nature Association. Sand storms from the Sahara have traveled far over the Atlantic ocean.

There are always reports of high winds around springtime. The famous blizzard of 1858 was from March 11 to 14. This swept the northern half of the United States.

The Samoa hurricane of March 16, 1889, wrecked American and German warships in the harbor of Apia, with heavy loss of life.

The St. Louis tornado of May 27, 1896, was the most destructive of the three tornadoes that have occurred in large American cities, the others being the Louisville tornado of 1890 and the Omaha tornado of 1913.

VIOLENT ROTARY WINDS

Records show that devastating storms occur in spring and fall. A tornado is a cloud — an upright, revolving, roaring, devastating cloud. But it is not a typhoon, a monsoon or a hurricane. Above all it is not a "cyclone." Typhoons and monsoons are storms covering large areas, hundreds of miles in diameter, and they give rise to straight winds only. The winds of a tornado have a violent rotary motion. The word "cyclone" refers, correctly, to the great storm systems which pass, week by week, across the United States.

If the barometer falls a cyclone is approaching. A tornado may accompany it, provided the cyclone is of tornado character; provided the locality is tornado territory; above all, provided it is tornado season.

Tornadoes come in season, and that season is from March to April and May. April is the month of bumper tornado crops. A later variety flourishes in May and, rarely, a few spring up in late August and September. The hot days of summer are not producers of the funnel cloud.

Statistics show that nearly 80 per cent take form in the first three months of spring.

THEIR PLAYGROUND

Tornadoes seldom occur outside the United States. The Mississippi valley reserves them mainly for itself. Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri run neck and neck for funnel-cloud honors, Nebraska easily takes second place. Then comes Mississippi, Alabama, Iowa, Illinois, the Dakotas and Minnesota. Outside this region the whirling cloud seldom strikes. It is unknown in California. New England is never visited.

The Portland storm of November 26 and 27, 1898, is an example of the danger of ignoring storm signals. The steamer Portland, which furnished the object lesson in this case was one of more than 140 vessels wrecked by the storm on the New England coast.

100,000 DROWNED

In the Eockergunge cyclone, October 1876, more than 100,000 people were drowned by the storm waves over the Ganges delta. In the Tay bridge disaster of December 28, 1879, the bridge over the Firth of Tay, in Scotland, was blown down while a passenger train was passing over it.

Closely connected with the development of weather forecasting is the "Crimean storm" of November, 1854. This tempest raged over the Black sea and played havoc with the fleets and camps of the allied forces engaged in the Crimean war.

The French astronomer Le Verrier, director of the Observatory of Paris, collected information concerning the progress of the storm over Europe which convinced him that a telegraphic report from the western part of its course had been available if its disastrous effects might have been averted.

As a result of this inquiry, he drew up plans for an international telegraphic storm-warning service, which was established by the French government, and the cooperation of other European countries in 1855. Within the next two decades nearly all the civilized countries of the world organized similar services of their own, and the scope of these undertakings was enlarged to include a general system of weather forecasting from charts based on telegraphic reports.

STAGE SCENE IS BEST PROJECT IN CLASS

An Elizabethan stage with a representation of the casket scene from "The Merchant of Venice" made by Misses Lucille Boehnlein and Betty Retter, was judged the best project in the ninth grade English class at McKinley Junior high school. Another stage, depicting the casket scene, made by Misses Camille Verbrick and Helen Oslinga, was given second place, and a third stage, showing Portia's bedroom, by Misses Elizabeth Reilly and Gloria Schroeder, took third place. A fourth stage was made by Miss Alice Herald. Dolls dressed as Bassanio, Portia, Nerissa, and Gratiano were turned in by Miss Irene Goss.

With the completion of the study of "The Merchant of Venice" and Homer's "Odyssey," the ninth grade has started the study of three narrative poems, Arnold's "Sohrab and Rustum," Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," and Tennyson's "Enoch Arden."

A. A. L. FEDERATION MEETING IN JUNE

Appleton Branches Will Appoint Delegates to Milwaukee Conference

The sixteenth annual convention of the Wisconsin federation of the Aid Association for Lutherans will be held in Milwaukee on Saturday, June 8, according to announcement by local association officers. The meeting will be held at the American Lutheran association building and has for its purpose acquainting the various members of the state A. A. L. branches with each other and activities of their various chapters.

The business meeting of the convention will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and a banquet will be held at 6 o'clock in the evening. Principal speakers will be Eugene Wengert, former district attorney of Milwaukee-co, and B. E. Mayerhoff, general fieldman for the association.

Appleton branches of the Aid Association probably will appoint delegates to the state meeting of their next monthly meetings.

RURAL SCHOOL WILL BE DEDICATED ON MAY 14

Formal dedication of the new Elm Grove Center rural school in the town of Ellington will be held on Tuesday evening, May 14. It has been decided by the school authorities. G. S. Dick, state rural supervisor, will be the principal speaker. A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, also will give a talk. The school children will present two plays and a group of students from the Outagamie Rural Normal school at Kaukauna will give a musical program. The Elm Grove Center school was completed this winter at a cost of $7,500.

COUNCIL WILL FIX REFERENDUM DATE

Day of Special Election May Be Set at Next Meeting

The date for the city referendum on the question of purchasing the Riverview Country club property for a new senior high school site probably will be set by the common council at its next meeting, according to Mayor A. C. Rule.

When the school board's report recommending the purchase was presented at a recent council meeting, the aldermen decided to refer it to the people before making a decision themselves. They also decided to let the new council select the date of the special election.

People in various parts of the city apparently are divided into two camps over the question. One camp agrees with the school board that the site under consideration is the most desirable of those available in the city, while the other side holds that the golf grounds are not located centrally enough.

At the time the council received the report from the board, a petition with almost 600 signatures protesting against the purchase was received by the council.

It is probable that the election date will be set in May.

Farewell Dance, 5 Cors., Thurs., April 25. Everybody welcome.

Miss Marguerite Krueberg leads the fourth grade with 22 books. Thomas Blount has read 19, Omer Wolfram 17, Miss Alva Schroeder 13, Miss Ruth Balch 12, and Miss Gladys Danielson and William Gardner 11 each.

WILLIAMS COLLEGE Editor thought OG's couldn't win!

But look what happened when a third of the student body compared the four leading cigarettes with names concealed

THE WILLIAMS RECORD, TUESDAY, MARCH 26, 1929

'OLD GOLD' CHALLENGES AND WINS IN CIGARETTE 'TEST'

Challenging the statement appearing in the columns of THE RECORD of February 26 that Williams men have a distinct preference for cigarettes as proven by the fact that that brand outsells competitors in local shops, the Old Gold company last Friday afternoon conducted one of its famous "concealed name tests" at Williams. As a result, Williams has joined the growing list of colleges and universities which have given Old Gold a plurality in such a contest, for out of the 234 votes cast, the challenging brand received 60 first choices, while two other leading makes could do no more than tie for second place with 59 votes apiece, and a fourth prominent brand received 50 preferences.

To admit no unfairness into the test, each brand of cigarette was denoted by one of five possible numbers, stamped on the black band concealing the name, so that comparison of numbers among those taking the test would have been difficult. The results of the voting, done entirely by number, were checked up by Seeley '29, and A. Clark '30, Business Manager and Assistant Business Manager of THE RECORD.

As a result of the try-outs held last Friday

TO RECONDITION THE HARTFORD

Admiral Farragut's old flagship, the Hartford, lies in the navy yard at Charleston, S. C. The Navy Department has just rejected the request of New London, Conn., that the ship be towed there for exhibition as a patriotic memorial to the great Civil War sailor.
The Hartford, the Navy Department explains, is not seaworthy enough to make the trip, and the department has no funds with which to recondition it. It will be recalled, in this connection, that even the Constitution is not being reconditioned at the navy's expense; the general public contributed the necessary money.
Erie, Pa., spent its own money to recondition one of Admiral Perry's squadrons, and the ship now draws many tourists annually to Erie. Probably the cost of reconditioning the Hartford would be more than New London would care to shoulder. It might be worth the city's while, however, to look into the matter.

BUILT BY THE RIVER

It has been a long time since the government has had any unoccupied public land as far east as the Mississippi river. The other day, however, the General Land Office announced that it had thrown open to homesteaders tracts of land in Louisiana and Mississippi and that it was ready to receive claims for them.
This land, it should be explained, did not exist when the great rush for homesteaders' land was on years ago. The Mississippi river has built it. Rich, black loam, carried down the river by scores of tons, has been deposited in what may be made good farm land.
The Mississippi brings floods and devastation, occasionally. But, less spectacularly, it is also engaged in constructive work. This new land, now about to be made productive, is an example.

WHEN A MISTAKE IS COSTLY

The mistakes that most men make in the course of their daily work are things that can be remedied in a short time. But there are a few businesses in which a mistake is apt to be frightfully expensive; and the business of building bridges is one of them.
A gigantic suspension bridge is being built across the Detroit river. The cables had been swung and about a third of the floor had been laid. Then it was discovered that the wires that made up the great cables were somehow defective. Someone—manufacturer, engineer or contractor, we don't know who—had made a little mistake. And there was nothing to do but take them down and start over.
That is costing the creators just $1,500,000. There are some trades in which mistakes are pretty costly.

BOOTLEGGING DOESN'T PAY

The bootlegger, as everybody knows, makes a lot of money. If he is energetic and lucky, he can become a millionaire in a short time.
But don't be in too big a hurry to envy him. The job, it seems, has its drawbacks.
In Kansas City one of the most prominent bootleggers was Frank De Mayo. He was arrested, eventually, and brought to trial. Four times he won a disagreement; it looked as if he never could be convicted. But one day he went to court, pleaded guilty, and took a sentence to the penitentiary.
Why? Because, he says, bootlegging doesn't pay. De Mayo is very rich, but the uncertainties, dangers and constant worry of the trade counterbalance his big income.
"You can't beat this game," he says. "I want to do my time and be a free man. No more bootlegging for me."

AUTOSTRADA
"Auto" seems to mean auto in almost every language. "Strada" means, street. In Italy an "autostrada" is a super highway. There are a good many of them in that country now. Mussolini, speeding up road traffic along with industry, has built some as good as any of ours, and superior in some respects.
They have longer stretches than we are accustomed to free from cross traffic, with fences keeping out pedestrians. Speed on them is entirely unrestricted. Where we have signs warning the motorist of the speed limit, Italy has signs telling him to go as fast as he likes. Many Italians do so to the tune of 90 or 100 miles an hour. That is safe because of the lack of obstructing traffic, mechanical or human, and because the roadways are engineered for speed, with no angular turns or bad grades and no grade crossings.
We shall doubtless have many such thoroughfares in America before many years, especially for transcontinental travel and the main north-and-south routes. It seems odd for the Old World to beat us to it, with all our love of speed.

CUBAN LIBERTY

"Cuba libre" was not only a Cuban slogan, but an American slogan, thirty years ago. It was made good. Cuba was liberated from Spain. Now the National Union of Cuba wants to know what good that did, if Cuban citizens have no freedom as individuals. Under President Machado, they declare, "a virtual dictatorship has been instituted and civil liberties denied."
The alleged dictator is about to be inaugurated for a second term of six years. When first elected, his platform pledged him to a single term. His second election, it is charged, was obtained by silencing the opposition through illegitimate means.
It is not clear what the United States should do about it, if the charges are true. This country stands obligated to defend Cuban freedom from herself, on occasion. In a situation plainly endangering the life of the republic, the United States could intervene, and could justify such an intervention morally and legally. But the present need is open to question, "intervention" is an unpopular word in Latin-America.
The situation at least ought to be clarified. There have been many ugly accusations made against Machado, which should be proved or disproved.

THE SPEED OF THE PLANE

The advantages of aerial travel are strikingly demonstrated by the action of David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aeronautics, who commutes, week-ends, from Washington to his home in Cleveland. Flying his own plane, Ingalls is able to reach his Cleveland home in less than three hours from the time he leaves Washington. When he closes his desk Saturday noon he jumps in his plane and gets to the Ohio city in plenty of time for dinner. Then he has Saturday night and all day Sunday and Sunday night at his home, taking off at 7 o'clock Monday morning and getting back to the capital in ample time to begin the new week's work.
The speed which the airplane gives is seldom better exemplified than in Ingalls' case. With that example before them, how long will it be before business men generally begin to follow suit?

TEMPERANCE REFORM

One of the reforms that will have to be adopted in England, Lloyd George announces, is "to cut down our extravagant drink bill, which is $1,500,000,000 a year."
It is evident that a country in England's present financial difficulties cannot afford that. Much of the drink money is spent by the poor to "drown their troubles," and merely makes them worse.
It happens that, at the same time, a big campaign against liquor has been started by British women. Evidently this is not a prohibition movement, in the American sense. It is, the London Express says, "something more subtle" than prohibition. The women call it "temperance reform."
Americans will be keenly interested in seeing just what that means, and how it works out.

One out of every five of our presidents have been vice presidents who came to office through the death of the president.
John Adams was our first vice president. He, as have eight others, later became president.

I went to the theatre with Harold the Seer, and the latter insisted that it be "Dutch Treat." The tickets were 50 cents apiece. I told the Seer he could buy them and I'd pay him later. Afterward I gave him 25 cents for half a seat. He occupied the rest.

Today's Anniversary

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR
Thirty-one years ago today Spain declared war on the United States in answer to resolutions adopted by Congress, recognizing the independence of the Cuban republic.
These resolutions adopted on April 19, 1898, the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, the start of the Revolutionary War, and of the first bloodshed of the Civil War on the streets of Baltimore, were in effect declarations of war on Spain.
As soon as they had been approved by the president, April 20, the Spanish minister asked for his passports, thus severing diplomatic relations. The following day, the American minister to Spain left Madrid.
On April 21 came Spain's formal declaration of war to create an enthusiastic patriotic sentiment in America. War had been expected since the sinking of the Battleship Maine in Havana harbor in the middle of February. A tragedy in which 260 members of the crew lost their lives. This crisis was always regarded as the start of a new war. Spain and gave rise to the cry: "Remember the Maine!"

DR. MOSHER'S CONTRIBUTION

If I were presenting medals for distinguished services I should pin one on Dr. Celia Ducl Mosher, medical adviser of women in Stanford university for her great contribution to the health of womanhood and the betterment of posterity. There are nowadays not a few medical women who swing a keen stethoscope or even a wicked scalpel, but Dr. Mosher's name stands out among the great women of her profession, for this achievement: She has shown women how to avoid most of the incapacities and suffering they have erroneously believed to be inevitable. From Dr. Mosher's book "Personal Hygiene for Women" (Stanford University Press) I quote her simple, yet marvellously effective exercise:
All tight clothing having been removed, the woman is placed on her back, on a level surface, in the horizontal position. The knees are flexed and the arms are placed at the sides to secure perfect relaxation. One hand is allowed to rest on the abdominal wall without exerting any pressure, to serve as an indicator of the amount of movement. The woman is directed to rise the hand by lifting the abdominal wall without straining, then to see how far this hand can be lowered by the voluntary contraction of the abdominal muscles. The importance of this contraction being especially emphasized. This exercise is repeated eight or ten times night and morning, in a well ventilated room, preferably while she is in bed and in her night clothing. She is cautioned to avoid jerky movements and to strive for a smooth, rhythmical raising and lowering of the abdominal wall.
Dr. Mosher points out that these exercises should be taken twice a day and every day in the month without interruption. She also gives some other instruction about the exercise that we cannot explain here. The woman taking these exercises should not hold the breath; if she is inclined to do so, she should keep her mouth open while doing the exercise. Dr. Mosher says attention should be concentrated on the abdominal muscles and advises the woman to "forget the breathing, which will take care of itself."
This exercise is only one of the features of Dr. Mosher's contribution to the health of girls and women. She has shown that the old policy of considering these normal functions sickness was an injurious one, and that young women who do not coddle themselves enjoy the best of health. Dr. Mosher includes in this little book some excellent advice on the care of the feet and the hygiene of footwear, but she does not insult the intelligence of readers by cautioning them about setting the feet wet, an omission which will be greatly deplored by a lot of old fogies who still hold jobs as health commissioners in benighted towns in the U. S. A.
I earnestly advise every girl or woman who suffers because she is a member of the credulous sex to make a careful study of the teachings in this book and put them into practice in her own life.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER
Washington — President Hoover's decision to abolish the white house stables marks the formal passing of what might be called in this country the sport of presidents.
For most of the past presidents have been fond of the noble quadruped, and some have been expert horsemen. It is true that since the days of Roosevelt, the white house stables have declined in popularity. However, it was not so long ago when the ride on horseback or the carriage spin was a definite part of every president's daily program.
Washington was the greatest horseman of them all. His dark gray mount "Blueskin" was his favorite, and the first president never passed up an opportunity to indulge in his love of horses. John Adams was not particularly enamored of horses, but Thomas Jefferson had fine ones. He rode his favorite "Wild Air" to Washington for his inauguration, and the hours from 1 to 3 o'clock every day were given over to riding.
FANCY CARRIAGE
John Quincy Adams often walked to Holmstead track, two miles from the white house, to enjoy a race. Jackson was reared on the back of a horse. "Old Hickory" once paid $2,500 for a coach for his wife. Van Buren had a carriage of dark olive which was ornamented with brass trimmings. He always insisted that they be polished until they shone like gold.
Harrison declined to use a hand-carriage and four beautiful horses presented him by the whigs of Baltimore and he rode his own horse to his inauguration. Tyler bought a second-hand carriage from Pauling, secretary of the navy under Van Buren, and he rode in a carriage decorated in dark olive with gold borders. The cushions were deep crimson trimmed with lace. The curtains were blue and red. Four horses pulled it through the streets of Washington.
Zachary Taylor rode about the capital on the old snow white horse that carried him through the Mexican war. Pierce owned a horse as blind as a stone wall which he rode around Washington.
LINCOLN HAD NAGS
Buchanan paid $800 for a set of harness studded with 56 silver studs in different places. Abraham Lincoln's horses were described by his coachman as being "a poor lot." Andrew Johnson bought his horses from those sold by the army at the close of the civil war.
Grant was a great lover of horses. He had three which particularly ap-

Chicago—Another youthful belief, that the handling of toads causes warts, has been blasted by Karl P. Schmidt in a book recently published by the Field Museum of Natural History. "This belief," says Schmidt, "is wholly without foundation. It evidently has arisen from the simple analogy between the wartiness of toads and the existence of warts on the hands of small boys. The warts of the toad's skin of course bear no relation to the warts to which the human skin is subject."

A man like Ed Howe is extremely useful. His debating abilities help to keep the false alarms in the arts in their place. The fact that he groups the real artists with the shams as contrasted with the so-called "plain people" is merely his limitation. It must be taken into consideration but need not prevent anyone from enjoying Ed Howe's books or the story of his life. He never fails to stimulate—often into opposition.

Adventures In The Library

By Arnold Mulder
ED HOWE'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY
One of the most interesting men of our time is Ed Howe and for that reason his biography, "Plain People," just published, is a book worth reading. Whether you agree with his point of view or not, as he is never commonplace. There is always a bite to his mind. What he says burns its way into your consciousness. Ed Howe is never merely neutral.
I am often in disagreement with what this veteran editor and paragrapher says but I never fail to read his remarks. When such a man sits down to write his autobiography it is likely to be worth reading.
Moreover, Ed Howe's life story is interesting—not "spectacular," just plain interesting. When he was in his middle twenties and was working as an obscure printer in a little town in Kansas he wrote a novel that he called "The Story of a Country Town." He had never been to college and he had never heard of the Russian realists. Moreover the whole trend of American literature half a century ago was hostile to the realistic point of view. In spite of that Ed Howe wrote his novel as a Russian realist might have done without however the typical Russian's lack of horse sense. Horse sense is Ed Howe's most marked characteristic.
No wonder the publishers wouldn't touch it. They said it was impossible, that Ed Howe ought to write in the spirit of sweetness and light was the mode those days. Ed Howe knew better. He wouldn't write like that and moreover he despised it. The result of it was that he set up his much-rejected novel in his own tiny print shop and amazingly it made a good deal of a hit. Then the publishers clamored for the right to publish it!
Perhaps that episode bolstered up the young Howe's self-confidence. At least there has been no lack of it in his life and there is no lack of it in his autobiography. Not unpleasantly so, but Howe takes delight in puncturing the pretty little theories that millions swear by. The more people hold anything as gospel, the better he likes to prove that it is pure moonshine and has no basis in fact.
He worships horse sense and he swears by the plain, average citizen without frills. Hence the title of his book, "Plain People." In his philosophy the plain people are the real people who make the world move. The rich, the poets and musicians are for the most part mere drags on progress. The men and women who go faithfully to ordinary prosaic jobs day by day, who live quiet, peaceful lives, who take care of their families instead of mooning about soul-mates—these are the people, according to Ed Howe, on whom society rests.
In an age when the rich are often under fire, Ed Howe defends them. He holds that the mere fact that a man made a fortune proves that he is a good citizen and has the qualities that society needs.
He is a relentless realist, he distrusts dreams and fancies. To him Rockefeller is a greater man than

BADGER SENATORS MAY BE ENTERING NEW ERA AT LAST

Election of La Follette on Important Committees Is Hopeful Sign

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Bureau of the Post-Crescent)

Washington—The election of Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., to the chairmanship of the Senate Committee on Manufactures, the post so long held by his father, and his election to membership on the important Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate doubtless marks a new era in the relation of the Wisconsin Senators to the Senate.

Senator La Follette thus takes over a chairmanship from which his father was ousted because of his insubordination. The young Wisconsin Senator was moved above Senator Jesse Metcalf of Rhode Island, who technically ranked above him on the Committee on Manufactures. Of course, Senator Metcalf is chairman of the Senate Committee on Patents, but the Manufactures committee is considered much more important than the Patents committee, and it is conceivable that the Rhode Island Senator might have wanted the job.

BLAINE OVERLOOKED

Senator John J. Blaine was given no new committee posts, but keeps his assignments on the Senate committees on the Judiciary, the Civil Service, the District of Columbia, Military Affairs, and Intercontinental Canals. Senator La Follette keeps his position on the committee of Commerce, Mines and Mining, and Indian Affairs, relinquishing only his membership on the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads in taking the chairmanship of the Manufactures committee and membership on the Foreign Relations committee.

Whether the assignment of Senator La Follette to these important posts in the Senate organization means that he and Senator Blaine will share in the patronage to be restored to the Wisconsin members of the House of Representatives is questionable. After all, neither of the Wisconsin Senators actively supported Herbert Hoover in the last campaign, and it is doubtful if they will be permitted to name Federal appointees to Wisconsin posts.

CONGRESSMEN STILL "IN"

The Wisconsin congressmen—all of them, regardless of their activity in the Presidential campaign—are to be consulted in the future on the appointment of postmasters, census supervisors and enumerators, rural carriers, and other Federal posts in their congressional districts.

"My nerves were on edge and I was irritable. I hardly ever got a good night's sleep. I had severe headaches due to constipation and was continually taking laxatives. I was in a dreadfully run-down condition.

"A friend advised the Sargol treatment and it proved to be wonderful. It brought me splendid health in one month's time. I can eat three hearty meals a day, and feel fresh without any bad after-effects. I have no more pains or dizzy spells, and my housework is a pleasure instead of a burden.

"I am thankful for the advice given me and am glad to tell others about this wonderful medicine. That faint, weak feeling has been replaced by new strength and I feel better than I have in twenty years."

At full pay after ten years' service and after reaching the age of 70.

The Wisconsin Senator took no public part in the quiet but effective campaign against Lenroot which prevented the Senate from confirming him when Calvin Coolidge nominated him for the same judgeship for which President Hoover nominated him Monday.

RUMORS ARE DIVIDED

Rumors have been flying around to the effect that President Hoover is "holding off" on the definite restoration of patronage rights to the Wisconsin congressmen until he has them all pledged to support his farm relief program. This was denied absolutely by some of those "in the know" on the patronage situation. They declared that they are left entirely free to vote as they please on any legislation.

The only chairmanship to be held by a Wisconsin congressman in the House of Representatives will be that of the Committee on Invalid Pensions, to which Representative John M. Nelson of Madison will be elected when the committees of the House are organized at the regular session in December.

Representative Nelson, as national chairman of the La Follette presidential campaign in 1924, was ousted from this post in 1924, and he declined it two years ago after Wisconsin newspapers allied with the La Follette cause attacked him for "backsliding" when it was reported that he might accept it, and when it became known that he had attended a caucus of the Republicans of the House.

How should the hand have been played?

THE CORRECT PLAY

Declarer was quite right in playing the King of Diamonds from King and one small in 'Dummy'. It was probably his only chance of taking a Diamond trick; but when leading Clubs to trick 2 and risking the Club finesse as he must do, he should have led so that if the finesse succeeded, the lead would stay in Dummy where he wanted it. Leading his Jack of Clubs from Dummy and East not covering (East should not with four), South should play the Ten; following with the Nine of Clubs from Dummy, on which South should play the Eight.

Trick 4 would be the third Club finesse.

Trick 5, a cashing of the Ace of Clubs.

Trick 6. Declarer would lead the Ace of Spades from Closed Hand so that when trick 7, he leads the Deuce of Hearts and wins with the Ace in Dummy, he will have made

VALLEY AIR ROUTE IS INSPECTED BY FEDERAL OFFICIAL

B. F. Myers, Assistant Superintendent of U. S. Air Mail, Visits Here

The Fox river valley air mail line was inspected Tuesday and Wednesday by B. F. Myers, assistant superintendent of the United States Air Mail service. Mr. Myers, who has headquarters at Chicago, flew from Milwaukee to Appleton in the air mail plane Tuesday. He made stops at Fond du Lac, Oshkosh and remained in Appleton Tuesday night.

Mr. Myers praised the four cities on the Fox river valley line as being enterprising and ambitious. He said people who are using the air mail line should not be discouraged because there were periods during the winter when the planes could not cover their routes due to bad weather. Mr. Myers said he was certain the service the coming spring and summer will be satisfactory.

"One of the essentials to maintaining the air mail is to assure service to patrons," Mr. Myers said. The patron can do considerable to help get best service from the air mail. Patrons, before dispatching letters or packages via air should be thoroughly informed as to schedules and the amount of time which will be saved by use of the new service.

NO ADVANTAGE

In many instances, Mr. Myers pointed out, there will be no advantage.

LABOR CONDITIONS IN APPLETON UNCHANGED

Labor conditions in Appleton are about the same as last month, according to the April survey made by the chamber of commerce for the United States department of labor. Conditions last month were favorable.

Appleton manufacturing companies are running full time although not all are running with full crews. The wire making companies here are running from 80 to 90 per cent of their crews, while knitting works also are running varying forces. Several of the mills have full time crews, others have cut their crews pending new orders.

There is some unemployment in the city, according to the Y. M. C. A. employment bureau but as out door work increases unemployment falls off.

One Charles Lindbergh was flying air mail for the government he operated under Mr. Myers.

THE NEW Saint Sinner

By Anne Austin

On that ominous note, Tony Tarver resolutely changed the subject. Against her sudden, reckless gravity, Crystal was helpless. Obsequiously, but with cold fear at her heart, she answered her chum's rapid string of questions regarding the evening in Cherry's primly austere Early American living room. She told of Harry Blaine's half-formed plans for a Christmas Benefit play, of his tentative casting of Tony as the "wicked vamp," told, much more calmly and indifferently than she would have believed possible a few hours before of her own prospective job on The Press; received Tony's sincere, excited congratulations and prophecies of a "howling success."

And at last, with fearful questions quivering unspoken on her lips, Crystal had to let Tony curl up on her own side of the big bed, while she lay taut—wracked with fatigue but unable to sleep.

What had Tony meant about—paying? Crystal asked herself the question endlessly, but there were only two possible answers. Tony had made up her mind to pay her "debt" to Dick Talbot by marrying him, or by entering "another and less public and binding relationship," as she had mockingly expressed it. And to pay in either way meant disaster for gallant Tony Tarver. Of that, Crystal Hawthorn had not the slightest doubt in the world. Marriage—she considered that first, as the most likely answer to the question of what Tony meant to do. Tony married to Dick Talbot, to whom she was violently attracted physically, but for whom she had almost no respect. Crystal flinched. No, no! A marriage like that wasn't good enough for Tony Tarver. Tony knew that. Even though she hadn't any stem of conceit in the world, beautiful body and mind, Tony held herself high, instinctively. Without coercion, Tony would never throw herself away in marriage. There was her ideal of marriage, too. She called it—and Crystal had to smile a little, tenderly, in the dark—an "anti-marriage complex." Tony so wanted—or Crystal believed she did—a perfect marriage that she shuddered away from marriage because she did not believe it could be perfect.

"That's because she has never been enough in love to believe," Crystal told herself. "If she loved Dick Talbot with all her heart and mind, as well as with her body—but that's out. She simply doesn't. If she marries him, it will be with a cynical foreknowledge of failure. And Tony and failure simply can't live together. Tony would be crushed out; wouldn't be Tony at all, after a while. No she mustn't marry him!"

But Tony had made it quite clear that she intended to "pay" her quixotic debt to Dick Talbot. But was it quixotic? If she were as honest as Tony, Crystal knew she would have to admit that there was some fairness in the charges Dick Talbot had made. Tony had let him make love to her for months, knowing that she did not intend to marry him. But all girls these days were guilty of

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cockran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE cow that jumped the moon real quick, soon disappeared, and—rather slick. The "Tines" watched in great surprise to see what he had done. Said Clowny, "Gee, I wish that I could jump like that, right through the sky. It looks like it is easy, and I'll bet it's heaps of fun."

The old man laughed. "Ha, ha, ho, ho! I guess you Tynymites don't know that if you tried that crazy jump you'd topple to the ground. And there would be no fun in that, because the ground is hard and flat. 'Tis best for all you Tines that some other sport be found."

"You're right," said Scouty. "We're safe here, and frankly there's no cause for fear. We will not jump away until there's some safe place to go." Then Copy shouted, "Me oh, my, as you go moving through the sky it's pleasant, Mister Moon, though you travel pretty slow."

"I'll tell you what," the Moon Man said. "Look up, and you'll see overhead, the famous great big dipper, made of stars. It's very bright." The Tines looked, and not in vain, 'cause it was up there, very plain. No wonder it surprised them. It was such a brilliant sight.

All of a sudden Clowny had a hunch that really wasn't bad. "We'll run right up the Milky Way, and reach that thing," said he. "I'm sure the trip soon can be made. It's not so sort of cheating—all girls, that is, except two classes; those to whom no man wanted to love and those who were only too glad to pay.

far. I'm not afraid. Whoever wants to go along, hop down and follow me."

So, up the Milky Way they ran, as fast as anybody can. Said Copy, "My, the dipper is a dandy place to hide." And then they reached it, all at once, and Clowny said, "See! I'm no dunce. I told you we could reach it. Hurry now, let's crawl inside."

WRITER "TIRES OF SCIENCE IN CHILD TRAINING"

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

A prominent novelist writes that she is tired of hearing about complexes and inhibitions, that children are scientized to death and as far as she is concerned the old-fashioned methods are good enough. She speaks impatiently of what she calls the "modern" mother.

Which goes to show that although people may become famous in one line, it does not endow them with omniscience in others. I feel like saying that she doesn't know anything about it when she slams the "modern" mother and like shouting from the housetops that children are not scientized to death.

If you look around, I believe you'll agree with me that, in popular parlance, they're anything else but. Not in the sense she means.

I believe the "modern" mother to be an earnest, sincere individual, not overly obsessed with textbook terms, nor overburdened with scientific generation and those before us have managed to do to the best of their ability.

But we are trying to make the world a happier and healthier place in the future, by making the eliminating process a surer and quicker thing and by trying to rid the human race of its kinks and prejudices while it is young.

"Child training" is not meant to be a burden but a help to the busiest mother. She does not need to turn her home into a "scientific laboratory" as this writer suggested. And she doesn't! I have yet to witness such a home. But as far as that goes, I wish that when I were little parents had known a few of the "scientific" things they know now.

Perhaps I should not be so nervous, or self-conscious, or afraid. Perhaps I should be more confident in myself, less inately superstitious and free from a thousand dreads; and consequently happier and healthier. I think that a good many mothers will join with me and say "Amen" to that. Don't let us have our children wishing that of us 25 years from now.

THERE ARE THE TOPSY'S

Children, like Topsy, will grow up, of course, some way—and a large percentage of them will smooth out the kinks in time and do pretty well for themselves as many of our own generation and those before us have managed to do to the best of their ability.

FASHION AIDS THE WOULD BE THIN PEOPLE

New York

Nobody has yet discovered a process by which one may diet without detriment to the disposition. But a clever dressmaker may do much for the production of slim lines without detriment to anything more important than the pocket-book. This now is being done by adaptations of the styles of 1888. The pet skirt is flat and short in front but it is trimmed at the sides and back so as to hide heavy lines. A dip at the back, flounces which fall gracefully to the hem and rise to the hips, and shaped basques with a back dip all aid.

AMERICAN IS DESIGNER OF PARIS SHOES

Joplin, Mo. (AP)—When Mary Bendelari, 16-year-old daughter of a Joplin mine owner, went to Europe six years ago she was just one of the army of post-war tourists.

When she came home this spring she had gained international distinction as an authority on modish footwear. She owns a smart shop in Paris where she sells what her French factory makes, and designs for several concerns.

Miss Bendelari was just out of art school when she went to Europe. Her business of selling handsome shoes to the elite began as a hobby with $3,000 capital, a gift of her father.

She was intrigued one day when she noticed some unusual shoes of leather and woven cord, worn by Balkan peasants. She made a drawing and sent it to a store. They ordered 300 pairs. She didn't have one pair, but she hired a Bohemian shoemaker to copy the drawing, using straw instead of the original woven cord. The result was the Deauville sandal.

The Joplin girl established a factory and began with a small crew of skilled shoemakers. Now the factory is in two buildings and 100 employees call the Missouri miss "la petite patronne," their "little boss."

Miss Bendelari later opened the retail establishment, and out of it grew other shops in various countries.

She considers an important style trend at present to be the development and use of pajama slippers.

ride in Fall or winter? What is more appetizing than its aroma at the break of day in the auto camp, or more refreshing than iced Postum poured from the thermos bottle under the heat of a midsummer's day?

Pleasure—Profit—Health!

These three words about sum up the total of the good things of life. And there is assurance of all of them in the diet change which Mr. Silcox recommends—in the change from caffeine to Postum.

There is hearty mealtime enjoyment in Postum's rich flavor—a flavor millions prefer. There is dollars-and-cents profit in the new feeling of buoyancy, the new urge to be up and doing. Health—sound sleep, steadier nerves, better digestion—when caffeine leaves your menu and Postum takes its place.

For Postum contains no drug, no artificial stimulant of any kind. Nothing to rob you of sleep, to attack nerves and heart, or affect digestion. Postum is made of roasted whole wheat and bran. A drink that helps you, instead of harming you!

Your grocer has Postum in two forms—Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup, and Postum Cereal, the kind you boil. Both cost much less than most other mealtime drinks—only one-half cent a cup. Order today—try the 30-day test!

POST-MORTEM SHOWS PRESENCE OF DRUG

Providence, R. I.—A trial instituted

by Mr. Edward H. Silcox, 68 Seaman Street, resulted in a conviction, after a "post-mortem" revealed the presence of a drug in the beverage constantly used by the plaintiff. The sentence was a change of diet. Mr. Silcox, himself, gives a detailed report of the proceedings:

"A trial several years ago converted me to the use of Postum and ushered in the post-mortem of injurious beverages.

"In the present day, the food chemist plays an important role. Our enjoyment of life and health depends on how we utilize his offerings. Thousands of thoughtful people are turning to a well-balanced diet, adding many years to their span of life. Neurologists recognize the harmful effects upon nerves of caffeine and prescribe a healthful substitute in Postum.

CALUMET COUNTY KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY NEARBY TOWNS

DOG ORDINANCE IS ADOPTED TUESDAY NIGHT BY COUNCIL

Canines Cannot Run at Large During Summer Within City Limits

Kaukauna—A dog ordinance prohibiting dogs to run at large in the city during the summer was adopted by the council Tuesday. Aldermen Bert Roberts and Hugo Weifenbach opposed the ordinance. The vote of Alderman E. Landreman, president of the council, who presided at the meeting in the absence of Mayor W. C. Sullivan, was needed for adoption.

Alderman Roberts stated that the ordinance did not show enough consideration for the dog owners by making them responsible for attacks on persons which might be caused by them. He said that if dogs must be tied up no dog tax should be levied. Alderman O. Luedtke said that there were many stray dogs in the city and that they should be destroyed.

A resolution instructing the city clerk to notify property owners on the island on the benefits and damages for the proposed severers to be laid there was passed. Some discussion on the resolution took place.

The R. J. Wilson company of Appleton which has the contract to lay the proposed sewers requested the council to permit them to use cement pipe instead of vitrified pipe as was called for in the specifications. They stated that they would have some trouble in getting that type. The council advised the company to use the type of pipe specified in the bid.

Alderman Luedtke moved that swings, a slide, and a backstop for baseball be erected on the island playground and a baseball backstop be erected on the Thiulany plat, known as the Polo grounds, on the north end of Des Moines street. The motion was carried. Alderman Roberts said that the erection of a backstop on the island was commendable because a large number of high school students besides the children of the island play ball there.

SECURE NEW BOOKS AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Aviation and Flying Stories Are Included Among Latest Additions

Kaukauna—Several new books of particular interest to men were secured at the public library this week, according to Miss K. Hornbrook, librarian. Donald Keyhoe, Lindbergh's aid, tells in a sympathetic and truthful manner of the great work of America's hero. His manner of receiving homage unspooled, and his boyish good humor endeared him to his aide as they had to all America. "Flying With Lindbergh" is a companion volume worth of Lindbergh's own "We." The popularity of "We" has made a second copy necessary. This also has been received at the library this week.

"And Then Came Ford" by Charles Merz the author of the "American Band Wagon," is of interest in connection with aviation. Henry Ford is made the symbol of America's prosperity and will power. His connection with the Peace Plan and world affairs as well as interest in locomotion are told well by a person endowed with insight and skill in writing, a rare and pleasing combination.

A Philo Vance story by Van Dine, "The Bishop Murder Case," will please the readers of clever detective stories.

A story, thrilling because of its truth and fearless candor is "A Marine Tells It to You" by Colonel Frederic May Wise. The author's 30 years of service in the U. S. Navy, a service which culminated in his command of the regiment at Chateau Thierry and Belleau Wood, give the author material for the exciting narrative. He tells all with glowing speaking directly to his readers, which makes them share as well as see the experiences.

EXPECT PENN ROAD TO OFFER MORE PAR STOCK VERY SHORTLY

Capital Stock of Railroad Is Increased to $700,000,000

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
(Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press)
Wall Street, New York—Financial Review and Outlook—

The increase from $600,000,000 to $700,000,000 in the capital stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad which was voted upon Tuesday is expected to be followed within a comparatively short time by an offer to shareholders of the company to subscribe additional stock at par.

This will mean that Pennsylvania stockholders will be given valuable "rights" as they were last year when they were permitted to take up an additional $62,500,000 stock at par. The interesting point, however, is whether or not the Pennsylvania management is to follow the precedent of other large American corporations in the past year and increase the income of their shareholders through the medium of stock "rights" rather than by that of higher dividends.

The two railroad dividend increases that a few months ago were discussed as probable this year were those of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania. On the assumption that the rates would be increased Baltimore and Ohio common stock sold as high as 133 last month and Pennsylvania at $2 1/4 in January.

Both are now off considerably from these figures. Last week the B. & O. announced that it would issue $4,000,000 of new common stock giving shareholders the right to subscribe for it at par. It has since been understood that the dividend is not to be raised in June and that shareholders will obtain their benefit through "rights" instead of in the form of the 7 per cent rate which had been earlier considered.

FAVOR PRESENT RATE
The Pennsylvania railroad is now paying 7 per cent. It is believed that President Atterbury and a majority of his board of directors favor the maintenance of this rate, which is one half the amount being earned per share of stock, giving the Pennsylvania shareholders the privilege of buying more stock well below the ruling market price for the present shares. In both instances this represents a certain amount of caution and unwillingness to commit the two carriers to a divided rate that might be burdensome in the event of a dip in the volume of traffic later in the year.

The practice of splitting up stocks and enlarging the volume of outstanding shares is one that has gained much favor in the last few years. It has been adopted by many of the important industrial companies including General Motors and U. S. Steel and by some of the largest public utilities, notably American Telephone and Telegraph.

It has the advantage of meeting the demand of shareholders for a larger portion of corporation profits without committing managements to a

INVESTMENT BOARD IS PROPOSED IN MEASURE

Madison—(AP)—Creation of a new state annuity and investment board and the office of directors of investments is proposed in a bill introduced Tuesday by Sen. Herman E. Boldt chairman of the legislatures interim committee which made a study of the investment of state trust funds.

The Boldt bill takes away the investment functions of a number of other state departments and concentrates them in the hands of the proposed new board. The bill provides for a board of five members made up of the state superintendent of public instruction and the new officer, director of investments who with the other three members will be appointed by the governor.

dividend rate that may be difficult to maintain in periods of industrial reactions or may be embarrassing from a political standpoint. In many instances the ratio of dividends on the new amount of stock is maintained as that on the old so that original shareholders are steadily pyramiding their incomes and a wider ownership of corporation stocks is being effected.

"I had almost given up hope of ever being relieved of my health troubles when Konjola was brought to my attention," said Miss Jackson. "I have taken a treatment and now my health is all that I ever hoped it to be."

"My nerves were so upset that" was really almost a wreck. I could stand nothing, even the playing of children around me was enough to drive me frantic. Noises of any kind were almost more than I could bear and it seemed to me that I was steadily getting worse. To add to my troubles, I was constipated and was addicted to taking strong laxatives all the time. After a short time their effect wore off and then I would be as bad as before taking. I also had indigestion very bad and everything that I ate would sour on my stomach and I was always belching up gasses and hot, sour liquids. It was constant misery for me.

"I heard about Konjola from someone who had not faith in medicines and I knew that if she would endorse any remedy it certainly must have merit. Of course, I wouldn't let an opportunity to regain my health slip away from me and so I decided to give Konjola a trial. How happy I am that I did because it has proved to be the stepping stone to new and glorious health. It was almost unbelievable the way in which Konjola worked on my inner-system—soothing, restoring, invigorating all the organs. My nerves became quiet, noises, children—nothing caused me any distress. I was so happy at this relief that I hardly knew what to do. So you can realize my feeling when the constipation disappeared and I was able to throw all laxatives in the waste basket. Then I noticed, surprising as it sounds it is the absolute truth, that the indigestion had begun to clear up. To test this out I tried foods that always harmed me and they digested perfectly. Now, the gas does not form, belching and all other symptoms are ended. What a happy person I am and Konjola receives the credit."

The Konjola Man is at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store, 114 West College Ave., Appleton, where he is daily meeting the public, introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free samples given.

HAD DESPAIRED OF RELIEF: THEN SHE HEARD OF KONJOLA

Nervousness and Indigestion Are Banished Through Use of This Advanced Medicine

Like tidings of great joy the praise of this new medicine—Konjola—is spreading with rapidity throughout this city and vicinity, as word of its astounding success in the relief of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel troubles, as well as in cases of neuritis and rheumatism, it passed from one to another. Scores who have found new health through Konjola, are loud in their praises, and the Konjola Man, who is explaining the merits and properties of this wonder medicine at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store, 114 West College Ave., this city, has no end of remarkable testimonials to the efficacy of this celebrated remedy.

Among the happy ones eager to tell what Konjola accomplished in her case, is Miss Anna Jackson, 235 Iowa avenue, Joliet, Ill., who made the following statement:

"I had almost given up hope of ever being relieved of my health troubles when Konjola was brought to my attention," said Miss Jackson. "I have taken a treatment and now my health is all that I ever hoped it to be."

"My nerves were so upset that" was really almost a wreck. I could stand nothing, even the playing of children around me was enough to drive me frantic. Noises of any kind were almost more than I could bear and it seemed to me that I was steadily getting worse. To add to my troubles, I was constipated and was addicted to taking strong laxatives all the time. After a short time their effect wore off and then I would be as bad as before taking. I also had indigestion very bad and everything that I ate would sour on my stomach and I was always belching up gasses and hot, sour liquids. It was constant misery for me.

"I heard about Konjola from someone who had not faith in medicines and I knew that if she would endorse any remedy it certainly must have merit. Of course, I wouldn't let an opportunity to regain my health slip away from me and so I decided to give Konjola a trial. How happy I am that I did because it has proved to be the stepping stone to new and glorious health. It was almost unbelievable the way in which Konjola worked on my inner-system—soothing, restoring, invigorating all the organs. My nerves became quiet, noises, children—nothing caused me any distress. I was so happy at this relief that I hardly knew what to do. So you can realize my feeling when the constipation disappeared and I was able to throw all laxatives in the waste basket. Then I noticed, surprising as it sounds it is the absolute truth, that the indigestion had begun to clear up. To test this out I tried foods that always harmed me and they digested perfectly. Now, the gas does not form, belching and all other symptoms are ended. What a happy person I am and Konjola receives the credit."

The Konjola Man is at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store, 114 West College Ave., Appleton, where he is daily meeting the public, introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free samples given.

GROVER ALEXANDER

NEEDS WIN ONLY NINE GAMES THIS YEAR TO TIE CY YOUNG'S NATIONAL LEAGUE RECORD OF 511 VICTORIES

HIS FIVE-HIT TRIUMPH OF OPENING DAY SHOWS ALEX'S ARM STILL HAS THE OLD MAGIC

BIG SIX

MATHEUSON SET THE LEAGUE'S MARK IN 1916 WITH 372 WINS

There's one pitching record in the books that probably will be blasted higher than a kite this season — and the man that may break this record is Grover Cleveland Alexander, lovable "Old Pete" with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The National League record for victories belongs to Christy Mathewson. He won 372 games during his career.

When Alex took the mound against the Cincinnati Reds in the season's opener, he had won 364 games. He let the Reds down with five bingles and won his first game of the season. Incidentally it meant 365 victories for him.

If Old Pete wins nine games this year — and he probably will double that number unless he breaks an arm or a leg — he will smash Christy's record. And if you can find any one foolish enough to wager a bit of cash that he won't win nine, bet the roll and all you can borrow.

ED MORRIS GIVES YANKS SIX HITS AND RED SOX WIN

Macks Open Home Season by Losing 11 Inning Thriller to Nats

Boston — The world champion Yankees opened Boston's portion of the American league season at Fenway park Tuesday by bowing before Big Ed Morris, who held them to six singles and tumbled them to a 5-0 standing. The Red Sox won by 4 to 2.

George Piggras, starting pitcher for the Yankees, got into trouble through wildness in the second when the Red Sox scored three times. A pass to Flagstad, Regan's single and Reeves' attempted sacrifice, on which no one was retired, filled the bases and one run was forced home when Todd was hit by a pitched ball.

All this happened with none out, and finished Piggras. Fred Helmach finished satisfactorily for the Hugmen.

Leo Durocher, accused as a light hitter, got three of the six Yankee singles, and backed this performance up with sparkling work in the field. A one handed catch by Tatt at the expense of Durocher resulted in a double play in the sixth.

The usual opening day ceremonies were held. Gov. Frank G. Allen threw out the first ball. Despite the cold, a crowd of 15,000 turned out.

Batteries — New York — Piggras, Helmach and Grabowski; Boston: Morris and Hevning.

Butte Des Morts Pro Praises Horton Smith

Frank Walsh Returns to Local Club After Winter's Play in South

Frank Walsh is back at Butte des Morts country club greeting his friends after a winter spent touring the south. And in a few days he'll start giving lessons and watching over the destinies of the club in general.

But between times he'll probably take a peak at the newspapers to see how some of his boy friends during the winter are coming along over in dear old England. Frank's boy friends being the members of the Ryder cup team and a few of the local pros.

Walsh will be especially interested in Horton Smith, the 20 year old Joplin, Mo., youth who burned up the fairways throughout the southwest this winter. Frank is a great admirer of the tall youngster from the show me state and when you find him in a talkative mood he'll tell about the star who is expected to become greater than Hagen.

In Walsh's opinion the Joplin youth is going to surpass Sir Walter. He steps up to the tee in tournaments with the air of a veteran of many years and is bothered by nothing that might occur as he starts pouncing the pellet over the hills and dales. And not only is Smith a good golfer, but he also is an all-around fellow, friendly with everyone and showing none of the outbursts of temperment many great sports stars are guilty of.

Walsh likes the makeup of the Ryder cup team but regrets the fact "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn isn't a member of the group, especially in view of the fact he made a fine showing in many southern tournaments.

Frank admits, however, that if Bill were to take the trip to Europe he'd probably startle some of the staid old English aristocrats to the point where they'd never recover from the shock. Bill just isn't constituted to pass up a chance to pull some of the wild capers he's guilty of, even if among the aristocrats.

And speaking of England and golf will be surprised when he learns that golf professionals from England and the United States are not permitted in the clubhouse on English or Scottish courses. They have access to the locker rooms of course, but otherwise they get their lunches at the public stand and must do their associating with other people.

Walter Hagen is the only exception to this rule while Bobby Jones, although an amateur, politely told the Englishmen what he thought when they asked him to go upstairs while his professional partner stayed behind.

The main trouble is that in Merrie Old England, a golf professional is a hired man, or something the equivalent, and isn't fit to travel among the aristocrats that spend their spare time at the clubs.

And here's a hint for the boys who aspire to be good golfers. The best way to accomplish this trick is to practice long and often. In speaking of peculiarities of some of the golf pros Walsh recalled that Al Watrous, laying in bed at night and trying to go to sleep recalls his day's golf strokes and finding one that went wrong, he'll clamber out of bed, grab a club and taking the hold he thought he used, try to correct the stroke. And it doesn't matter whether its early morning or near midnight.

SOFTBALL TEAMS IN SPRING PRACTICES

National and American Leagues Start Season Next Week

With opening of the National and American softball leagues but a few days away, practically all the softball teams in the city are getting a practice game or two under their belts. Starting last week a couple clubs braved the cold blasts and played games but most of the boys seem to be taking things up in earnest this week.

Games are being played all over the city for the time being. A couple squads are using First ward school grounds, others have usurped Pierce park diamond and still others have taken the Wilson school grounds.

Schedules for the two leagues will be announced in a few days, according to A. C. Denney, directors of summer playground activity. One of the schedules is made out now, according to the coach but will not be made public for a few days.

The first league games will get under way next Tuesday, according to present plans.

INDIANS RALLY AND WIN

Cleveland—A ninth inning rally gave Cleveland a 5 to 4 victory over the Chicago White Sox and enabled the Indians to get an even break in the abbreviated two game series which ended an Tuesday.

Jakie Tavenor scored the winning run in the ninth on Joe Sewell's sacrifice fly.

Ves Ferrell gave another exhibition of excellent relief pitching for the Indians and received credit for the victory after Walter Miller and Grady Adkins had hurled on even terms for seven innings.

Batteries—Chicago: Adkins and Autry; Cleveland: Miller, Ferrell and Myatt.

BROWNS EVEN SERIES

St. Louis—Overcoming a five run lead, the St. Louis Browns bunched hits in the late innings to chase two Detroit pitchers and win the final game of the series on Tuesday, 11 to 5. Blue, Brownie first baseman, started at bat, getting two home runs and accounting for three runs. Gehring and McManus hit for the circuit for Detroit. Crowder, starting against the Tigers for the second time during the series, was batted out of the box. Tuesday's win squared the series.

Batteries—Detroit: Carrol, Smith, Wampler and Phillips; St. Louis: Crowder, Blackholder and Manion.

against Vance, but was outpitched.

The Dazzler fanned seven and gave no earned runs whatever, the sixth inning rally of the Braves being aided by two wild throws.

Cleveland Infield May Surprise Indian Critics

BY JOHN B. FOSTER—Copyright 1929

New York—Carl Lind of the Cleveland club, is starting the season at a fast pace, as he did last year. The Indians made him a second baseman in 1928 and the able manner in which he handled the bag in the early part of the race had much to do with keeping Cleveland up in the fight.

Lind did not seem to play as well or with as much sureness in the latter part of last summer as he did at the start, and there were some who thought that he was not enduring enough to hold anything like a championship pace for a long season of 154 games.

There is some doubt as to this. It is more likely that he may have let down for a little for one reason or another because of the general sagging in play of the team. Now he is beginning with assurance and dexterity again and he played such good ball in the first week of the 1929 season that he appears to be on the way to a better year than he had in 1928.

Lind took part in eight double plays in the Cleveland-Detroit series. If he kept on at that rate he would be one of the actors in 308 double plays by the end of the season. To make a total of that kind is beyond probability.

Hugh Critz of Cincinnati made an unofficial record in 1928 of having started 53 double plays. That beat the record that Stanley Harris made when he and Roger Peckinpaugh were so surpassingly good on the Washington team.

There is reason for the good work of Lind, not only because of his individual expertness but because he has playing with him one of the surest hands in infield hits in the major leagues—Jack Tavenor, formerly of Detroit.

Tavenor worked beautifully by the side of Gehring who is still with Detroit and also by the side of any club that Detroit used at second base. Because he is not one of the most powerful batters in baseball and perhaps because he seemed to be a tender ball player, the Detroit club permitted to go to Cleveland in a deal for George Uhle. It is true that Uhle helped to win the only game that Detroit copped in the Cleveland series but it is a question whether the trade has not been more advantageous to Cleveland than to Detroit, although it is evident that Detroit needs pitchers who have substance.

Some players who work around second base and shortstop have been picked as great double play teams for this season. In the predictions Tavenor and Lind have been lost sight of. It will be an interesting development of the season if the addition to Tavenor to the Cleveland club makes this one of the fast double play clubs of major league baseball.

Lind made a better record against Detroit than any other infielder made in the first home-and-home series played in the majors. He accepted eight chances once, nine once, and twelve once and that is remarkably fast spring baseball.

RUMOR ARMY, NAVY TO MEET IN 1931

But Service School Officials Deny They Have "Made Up"

New York—(P)—A renewal of the oft-repeated rumor that Army and Navy were prepared to patch up their athletic differences has brought from officials of both institutions a denial that there has been any change in the situation.

The report, as printed in Chicago, had it that the rival service academies were ready to call a halt to verbal hostilities and resume football relations in a game to be played at Soldier Field, Chicago, in 1931. Soon afterwards authorities at West Point and Annapolis came out with statements professing entire ignorance of any such arrangement.

Despite this double-barreled denial insisted that a contract for use of the field was in the hands of the south park board ready to be signed.

An Army Spokesman at West Point said bluntly that there was nothing to the report. "Our rule are ours," he added.

ROBINS SHADE BRAVES

Brooklyn—The Robins celebrated the official opening of their home season on Tuesday by shading the Boston Braves by 3 to 2 in eleven innings for their first 1929 victory. Dazzy Vance pitched great ball for the home team, but received indifferent support. The game was won with one out in the eleventh on a pass to Flowers, his steal and Bancroft's single to left.

WISCONSIN NINE WALLOPS BRADLEY

Five Hundred Shivering Fans See Badgers Open Season at Camp Randall

BY STANLEY E. KALISH Associated Press Sports Writer

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin's baseball team, home from its most successful southern training trip in history, proved its victory complex before 500 shivering fans here Tuesday afternoon by coming from behind to defeat Bradley Polytechnic Institute, Peoria, Ill., 10 to 5.

Time and weather fought a bitter race with the Badgers in victory for the game lasted two hours and 50 minutes and a chilly northwest wind made the fielder's tasks difficult.

After Bradley had taken a four run lead in the opening inning, the Badgers steadied and counted their runs in four innings. The game was a slugfest, with 21 hits going for a total of 40 bases. Baltz and McCune counted home runs for the visitors, while four base clouts by Cuisinier and Mansfield of the Badgers gave Wisconsin six of their runs.

Score by innings:

Bradley 4 0 0 1 0 0 0 0—5

Wisconsin 0 0 0 4 3 0 2 1—10

JOHN DOYLE SIGNS AS LOUISVILLE COACH

The newspaper said Doyle stopped here on his way south with the Badger baseball team long enough to confer with officials.

There Are Ways And Ways Of Getting Fight Cards

BY JOHN ROMANO Copyright 1929

NEW YORK—The suspension of verbal warfare between Max Schmelling and his staff of managers made the German Dempsey match with Pauline Uzcudun a notable A worthy charity benefits but if Maxie happens to get hit on the chin by one of Pauline's wide sweeping left hooks, the battle over control of the German may turn out to be a light skirmish. Schmelling in the loser's role would not be such a bargain for a manager to worry about.

Now the local garden snared Schmelling despite a ruling that he would have to go through with a Boston engagement is a cute one for the fans to untangle. Schmelling was permitted to fight Johnny Risko on condition that he would go through with his Boston contract before he fought anywhere else. Max decided he wanted to visit his mother in Germany before doing any more fighting and forgot all about the date he had in Boston with Ernie Schaff.

Now what happens? The local garden had Joe Dundon under contract to fight Young Jack Thompson. The welterweight champion was permit-

WINGARD HELPS HENS BEAT BREWS BY 7 TO 6 COUNT

Tony Welzer Hurls Sparkling
Ball and Kerns Win First Game

TOLEDO—The heavy hand of Judge Landis, working through the agency of Ernie Wingard, pounded another coffin nail in the Brewer pennant hopes here Tuesday when the slim southpaw curled a ninth inning rally that left the Mud-hens with a 7 to 6 decision.

Until the sparse form of one of the commissioners most famous free agents shuffled out to the turf in the final round, the Home Brews were making good their bid to spot the Hens six runs in the opening round and still battle through to the top.

Pitchers paraded to and from the mound for both sides from 3 o'clock until Eddie Pick was retired for the final out near sundown. The bull pen catchers were busier than a cameraman at a family reunion.

Denny Gearin was the first to parade in and the first to parade out.

The little left-hander footed the bill of the six run assault in the opening stanza that gave Stengel's troupe a hammerlock and combination crotch hold in this, the first contest of the season between these two old enemies.

Following the prodigious Providence portender, in the order named, were Jack Euvyd, who struggled along to the seventh in pretty good shape, Bob McIntire, the George Bernard Shaw of the profession and finally, Cannonball Joe Eddleman.

Batteries—Milwaukee: Gearin, Euvyd, McIntire, Eddleman and McMenamy; Toledo: Palmero, McNamara, Pfeiffer, Wingard and Heyworth.

KANSAS WIN FIRST
Louisville, Ky. — After losing the first five ball games of the year, the Louisville Colonels, behind sparkling pitching by Tony Welzer, broke from the maiden ranks to shut out St. Paul 4 to 0 in the opening game of a series here Tuesday. Welzer kept six hits well scattered, eluded Betts for nine blows before he was relieved by Girard. The game was the shortest of the season in Louisville, being completed in one hour and 24 minutes.

Batteries—Louisville: Welzer and Thompson; St. Paul: Betts, Girard and Tesmer.

K. C. BEATS COLUMBUS
Columbus, O. — Kansas City fielded perfectly back of Nelson's effective pitching to defeat Columbus, 6 to 2, in the opening game of the series. Miller was ineffective, but Wyson and Harris did well as relief pitchers. Tucker's timely hitting and Spurgeon's clean steal of home featured.

Batteries—Columbus: Miller, Wyson, Harris and Shinnatt; Kansas City: Nelson and Peters.

INDIANS LOSE AGAIN
Indianapolis — The Indianapolis American association champions lost the opening game of the series to Minneapolis here on Tuesday, by a score of 4 to 2 and went into a tie for second place in the pennant race with the visitors.

Batteries—Minneapolis: Benton, Middleton and Kenna; Indianapolis: Schupp, Love and Schurz.

AH, A WAR!

THERE is going to be some old-fashioned baseball in the National League this year when the New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs get together, according to the correspondents who have been covering the early season activities of the two clubs.

There was a time, not so far back in the past, when the arrival of the Cubs in New York and the Giants in Chicago was a matter of serious concern to the police officials.

In addition to all their other duties, the coppers had to protect McGraw from the irate customers and had to guarantee the safety of the person who happened to be managing the Cubs. In the good old days the manager of the Chicago happened to be "Huck" Chance and he didn't need many cops to take care of him. He was of the type who could handle cops himself. So was McGraw.

OLD RIVALRY BACK
It happened this year that the Cubs and the Giants are supposed to be running one-two for the National League pennant. And the pennant means a lot of dough for the athletes of any club that gets in there.

It is the first time in many years that the Cubs and the Giants are in there with some actual rivalry. They had a hang-over spirit of hostility from the old days, but the Cubs had only their traditional inheritance of fight against the New Yorks.

Since the war days the Giants have had to make their fights against the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals, with an occasional scrap tossed in against the Brooklyn and the Cincinnati.

ONE OR THE OTHER
But this year the opinion seems to be that the Giants and Cubs are going to be first or second. They feel that way among themselves and when they get together in a series they likely will act that way.

Bad feeling between the two clubs started last season in the late days of the pennant race when the Giants were making their valiant but losing fight for the championship.

The Cubs were out of the race. They had had some miserable experiences with the poor Phillies of Philadelphia and they realized their chances were shot. But they were out to beat the Jints.

In one of those very late games Gabby Hartnett, the Chicago catch-

BUNION DERBY MOVES ON INTO MISSOURI

Collinsville, Ill. —(AP)—With 1,036 miles of their 3,400 mile journey completed, the 28 survivors in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby moved into another state Wednesday. They were headed for Maplewood, Mo., a jump of 30 miles. The starting time was 9 o'clock, two hours later than usual.

Pete Gavuzzi, bearded Italian of Southampton, England, was protecting a three hour lead over Johnny Salo, the flying cop of Passaic, N. J., when the blister brigade moved out of Collinsville this morning.

er, did a neat job of blocking when Andy Reese was coming into the plate with the winning run. He blocked Reese off the rubber until he got the ball and then he slapped it into the midst of his spine.

A GREAT UMPIRE!
Bill Klem, the National League umpire who admits modestly that he never made a mistake, called Reese out and the Giants raised hell. They raised such a fuss that Klem threatened to retire from baseball with his injured pride. But he didn't.

The Giants insist that Klem's wrong decision and Hartnett's "foul" cost them the pennant and all that dough and the New York players in their spring training camp were not hesitant in saying that it was going to be tough on Hartnett this season when any Giant was going into the plate with the winning run. And that it would be hard on the Chicagoans on every play.

And so say the Chicagoans about the Jints.

Sports Question Box

Question—In the playoff game between the Chicago Nationals and the Giants in 1908 what pitcher started for the Cubs. Was it Pfeister or "Three Fingers" Brown?

Answer—Pfeister started the game and Brown finished it.

Question—What titles does Henri Cochet, the French tennis player hold?

Answer—French and American singles.

Question—A game was protested because balls and strikes were improperly called, or at least that was the claim made. It was also said the umpire had called a foul ball, fair. At the meeting of the league three voted to allow the protest and three voted not to allow it.

Answer—There can be no legal protest made on this game. The decision of an umpire always stands on matters of personal judgment. Were that not the case every baseball game in the world could be thrown out by an adverse vote of a board of directors.

WISCONSIN WRESTLER MEETS JOHNNY MEYERS

FASTEST TIME IN DERBY
Old Rosebud's time of 2:03 2-5 seconds is the fastest ever made in a Kentucky Derby.

Indianapolis — Tony La Rose, Cincinnati, and Norman Brown, Chicago, drew, (10).

INDIA COULD BE POWER IN WORLD, NEW BOOK CLAIMS

"Shiva," Banned by British,
Says Possibilities There
Are Unlimited

BY MILTON BRONNER
London—Gifted with natural resources on an unparalleled scale, India in one century's time could easily become by far the greatest and most prosperous country in the world—greater and richer even than the United States.

This startling declaration is made in one of the most talked-of books now circulating in England—"Shiva, or the Future of India," written by R. J. Minney, banned by the Indian government and made the subject of a sizzling debate in the House of Commons.

If the much discussed "Mother India" was a shocker, "Shiva" is a whole load of dynamite. Briefly, its thesis is this:

India has three times the population of the United States. It has simply untold natural wealth in minerals, tremendous agricultural possibilities, with such products as cotton, tea, jute, sugar and the like. It has great deposits of petroleum, coal and iron. It could be made to outrank the United States by a long way.

UP TO THE PEOPLE
But—if India is to come even close to doing this, both whites and natives must buck up. Caste, religion and sex are three great curses that have put India into a straitjacket. The native Indian spends all of his time sleeping, praying and chasing women. And the British government class—

"The British lion," declares Minney savagely, "is but an exhibit in the Indian zoo, snarling terrifyingly from behind the bars that the ridiculous proclamation of Queen Victoria erected in 1858."

This proclamation, as it happens, is a bit of business on which the British—especially the more liberal ones—pride themselves considerably.

It set forth that the British government in India would not interfere in any way with any of the native religious beliefs. Offhand, that looks like a very enlightened and humane policy. But Minney doesn't see it that way.

Instead, he declares that is the exact opposite of the course England really ought to pursue. The British, he says, should break down the caste system. They should destroy the power of the great horde of native priests. They should resolutely rip out the Indian religious customs and beliefs which are the cause of such things as child wives, lack of hygiene, ignorance, disease, dirt and illiteracy.

Nor does he stop there.

EDUCATION IS NEEDED
Instead of prating about giving the right of self government to scores of millions of ignorant peasants, the British government, he says, ought to go to work to bring education to the appallingly untaught masses. It should teach them the proper way to conduct their farms. It should smash the grip of the native money lenders. It should encourage the up-building of home industries.

Lastly, Minney assails the Englishmen who look on India merely as a place in which they can get rich, and which they can promptly leave, once their money has been made, in order to spend it elsewhere. He scores them bitterly for their intolerant, over-bearing attitude toward the native Indians, no matter how cultured, well-educated and well-

mannered the latter may be.

Thus, obviously, "Shiva" is an unusual sort of book. The British government in India lost no time in banning it from circulation. The publishers promptly began selling it in London with a gaudy yellow jacket, announcing:

"This book has been banned in India!"

This, of course, set everybody in England to talking about it. And Commander Kenworthy, one of the keenest men on the Labor benches in Parliament, was one of them. Furthermore, Kenworthy did his talking in the House of Commons.

He asked the government why this book had been banned when the government of India permitted Miss May's "Mother of India" to circulate freely.

Earl Winterton, under secretary of state for India, replied that the Indian government prohibited the book because it dealt with certain subjects in a way certain to give offense to Indian public opinion.

POINTS TO CRITICISM

Kenworthy, undaunted, promptly came back with the question whether the book was banned because it might give offense to certain Indian subjects or because it criticized the policies of the British government. Winterton dodged this, saying only that the book commented on the Hindu religion with great coarseness.

Kenworthy, probably, was right. The book is merciless in its criticism of the British rulers of India. To be sure, its attacks on the natives would probably make the natives angry. But what it says about their white governors would make the British team with rage.

Which, no doubt, is why the book cannot be sold in India.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
MILDRED LAWRENCE, stenographer at the Judson hotel, has her fox fur snatched from her in a crowd, but STEPHEN ARMSTRONG catches the thief and returns the scarf. He asks to take her home. Not wishing to seem ungrateful, she invites him to dinner.

Their evening is spoiled when PAMELA JUDSON, daughter of her employer, phones Mildred to return to duty. Stephen escorts her to the hotel where Pamela recognizes him as the salesman who had sold her a car. She snubs Mildred and tries to lure Stephen away by pretending she wants to buy another car.

Then Pamela meets HUCK CONNOR, who becomes infatuated with her, and she amuses herself by playing with both men. When Stephen favors Mildred the manager asks her to be careful or Pamela will have her discharged. But this may not be so easy as her brother HAROLD is in a tangle with Mildred. He is speaking and Mildred permits him to call on her to keep him from Huck's gambling crowd. However, he suspects that she cares more for Stephen than for him and refuses to stay one evening when Stephen comes to see Mildred.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XIII
Mrs. Lawrence was not surprised to see Stephen. Mildred had told her he was coming. But she was puzzled over her manner, the uneasy way in which Stephen stood before Mildred and the latter's accusing attitude.

"Why, good evening, Mr. Armstrong," she said cordially, advancing to shake hands with him. She glanced inquiringly at Mildred. The girl turned abruptly toward the living room. At the door she called back casually:

"Come on; we'll play three-handed bridge."

Mrs. Lawrence smiled apologetically at Stephen while he doffed his overcoat.

"I can't seem to learn how to play bridge," she said; "else we could have a regular game."

Stephen made a quick mental computation. Three players, without Mrs. Lawrence. That meant there was a fourth person about and it hadn't occurred to him there might be anyone to see him kiss Mildred. The kid sister, of course. He grinned.

Mrs. Lawrence's next words upset his conclusion. "Connie's out," she said. "Of course I don't like to have her stay up late for cards and Mildred says she talks too much."

Mildred interrupted by calling out to ask where the cards were. Mrs. Lawrence went to search for them and Stephen followed, wondering who was in the living room. He saw no one but Mildred.

Mrs. Lawrence looked around in astonishment. "Did Mr. Judson go?" she asked blankly. "I didn't hear him."

Mildred shrugged. "He wouldn't disturb you to say good night," she explained. "You'll have to play. Mom. We'll teach you. 'It's such a bore for two.'"

She looked defiantly at Stephen. "Let us play something your mother knows," he suggested politely.

"I don't believe you know any old-fashioned games," Mildred challenged with a meaning that was not lost on him.

"Well, there's post office," Stephen laughed. "I know how to play that. How about it, mother?"

Mrs. Lawrence beamed at him. It warmed her heart to hear this nice young man call her mother. She'd always wished that her eldest child had been a boy, and that Mildred had come next. She never could wish that Mildred had been anything but Mildred.

"I expect you young people of today don't bother to call it post office," she said, shaking her head reprovingly.

"But it's the same old game, eh, no matter how you play it?" Stephen persisted. "Nothing to get hot—er—angry about, what?"

Mrs. Mrs. Lawrence was not to be drawn into a discussion of kissing. "Now, young man," she said, "I think what you need is a cup of tea or chocolate."

"Chocolate," Stephen decided. He had a vague idea that it might take longer to make it and he wanted desperately to be alone with Mildred for a few minutes right then.

"I prefer chocolate myself," Mrs. Lawrence said and left them.

"Mildred," Stephen was beside her. "I'm sorry," he said, and hesitated. "I mean I'm sorry you didn't want me to kiss you."

"I suppose it hurts your vanity," Mildred replied.

"So that's it. You think I'm a practicing Don Juan? I object to the truth. Did you really object to being kissed, or was it just that you think I'm conceited enough to believe I can go about kissing whom I please?"

Mildred faced him steadily. "Well, she began uncertainly. Then, with a rush, came scornful words. "You must have had some pretty cheap experiences to imagine your uninvited kiss would be welcome to me," she ended breathlessly.

"Uninvited? My Lord, girl, don't you know that you were made for kissing at just that moment? I'm sorry because it offended you, but I can tell you that I appreciate it for all it was worth, if that helps any. And it was worth a great deal."

"Was it worth quarrelling about?" "Yes, I'd even fight for a chance to do it over again," he answered readily and Mildred was utterly routed by his blithesome sincerity.

"I'll be on my guard next time," she warned him.

Suddenly Stephen grew serious. "Don't think I'll try to kiss you do. "But do come up again soon. Come to dinner. There'll be green apples in the market before long. I'll make you a deep-dish pie."

"I never got put out quite so charmingly," Stephen teased her. "Another time, out home, the culinary touch was introduced around 11 o'clock, but it was a demonstration of skill with a rolling pin. I'm sure I'd rather go on the promise of pie."

Mildred went to the door with him. She was thinking how little he was likely to be enticed anywhere by pie. Why, tomorrow he was going out with a girl whose background made pie seem positively vulgar. There were people, even at the Judson, who ordered pie, but it was pie disguised with decorative scrolls and pastry bouquets. It was not the spicy, juice-soaking pie her mother made.

And during the next few weeks, as the days grew warm with the early spring that comes like a false jade to lure New Yorkers into premature storing of winter wraps, Mildred found herself making excuses to her mother for Stephen.

They had seen very little of him at Mildred's home. She saw him often in the hotel, however, but she knew that he was there to see Pamela.

After that first demonstration of a new car, Pamela had managed gradually to enthrall Stephen. There were times when he came to Mildred's desk and lingered as though reluctant to depart without wiping away some of the coolness that had sprung up between them, but his indecision ended generally with a cheery "see you again," and nothing more.

Mildred hated herself because of her indifference to him was not genuine. Try as she might she could not keep her heart from jumping whenever she caught sight of Stephen. Time and time again he had passed her desk with Pamela hanging on his arm and her eyes had followed them.

Well, she'd known from the beginning that it was hopeless for her to want anything that Pamela Judson wanted. Only . . . she wondered sometimes if Stephen was happily ensnared, wondered if she couldn't win him away from Pamela if she tried. "But I can't," she always told herself in despair. "I can't vump him and he'll never see me in Pamela's shadow unless I step out and show him that she isn't the only girl who has pep."

Crying it out in her pillow one night, she knew that Stephen would have to discover her for himself. If it meant anything that he couldn't forget her, that now and then he remembered the little morning nosegay, he would have to find the meaning alone.

But deep in her heart Mildred could not help feeling that Stephen belonged to her, that if Pamela had not set herself to dazzle him he'd have found it out.

And she couldn't do anything about it. She couldn't draw him to her with little smiles, little words, little tricks. There was nothing coquettish about her. She would give her heart in a gesture of magnificent surrender, but she would not make a game of it.

Stephen still thought her a peach

Miss Mary Anderson, Who Came to U. S. as Immigrant, Holds Job

Washington—(AP)—Miss Mary Anderson, who came to this country from Sweden at the age of 16 with no knowledge of the English language, has been requested by President Hoover to continue as head of the women's bureau of the department of labor.

She is one of the few women in government service who hold their positions by direct presidential appointment.

Having worked her way up through the hardest kind of toil, a stranger in a strange land, she now is recognized as a leading authority on the subject of women industrially employed.

Ambition sent her to America, of which she had heard much, from the sparkling, snowy slopes of her native land. Domestic service seemed the only opportunity for one who did not speak our language.

The Viking spirit of the girl rebelled against the hot hours over the kitchen stove, the lonely ones in her drab room. She got a facing of a girl, when his mind wasn't on Pamela or selling cars. Some one of these days he'd ask her to take a spin in the country.

In the meantime Mildred became suddenly aware that she was not the only one who faced hopelessness.

tory job stitching men's trousers. Rebellion drove her from that after a week.

Then, for 18 years she worked in the shoe factories in and around Chicago. She attended the conclaves of the labor union workers and was made union organizer among the women in her trade. She was so successful that she was finally elected to the executive committee of the Root and Shoe Makers' union, the first woman to hold such a place.

When the war came Miss Anderson's ability was recognized by a call from Washington to act in an advisory capacity with the women in industry service of the department of labor. When that service was or-

HOOVER ALONE IN HIS OPPOSITION TO TARIFF RAID

President-elect Favors Increased Protection on Only 15 Per Cent of List

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—The only noteworthy opposition to the anticipated tariff raid, except that from foreign sources, appears to have come from President Hoover himself, in private conversation.

Tariff fights in the past have aroused the country. But this time there isn't any fight. There are two reasons generally given for the lack of opposition. One is that the country is pretty well sold, rightly or wrongly, on the protective tariff. The other is that there is no hard-ly a member of congress, so far as has been the expansion of our industrialization, who hasn't some industry in his district which yells for protection.

Concerning the first factor, it may be said in passing that judging from the squalls heard before the House Ways and Means Committee most American manufacturers are on the verge of bankruptcy which can only be averted by higher duties, which might seem to indicate some doubt about prosperity.

The other is a matter of stern reality for any congressman. It doesn't do for him to ignore the wishes of business men in his district, especially those of powerful manufacturers or other producers. And if he seeks protection for his own home folks he must support similar pleas from other members for tariff bills are always a beautiful and touching example of mutual aid.

Just what sort of a tariff rejiggering Mr. Hoover really wants will soon be apparent. The more intriguing problem concerns what sort of a tariff rejiggering he will have to accept and the question whether or not Mr. Hoover will actually stand up and make a fight against the raid.

At last reports Mr. Hoover favored increases merely on about 15 per cent of the duty list embracing only those things which would help the farmer. It doubtless will be pointed out early in the special session, as no one has bothered to mention lately, that increased tariff rates would hardly help raisers of the six major crops in this country because there is in each one an annual exportable surplus.

These crops are wheat, corn, hogs, cotton, tobacco and rice and no way has yet been approved which would give their producers the benefit of the inoperative protection which they now enjoy. Meanwhile everyone else who would profit by more protection is horning in on what was originally supposed to be the grain grower's show.

Of course, there are many other things which would benefit by higher duties. Increases on Cuban sugar and restrictions on Philippine sugar would help our own sugar interests, beet and cane. Wool growers could get still higher prices if there were no foreign competition to keep prices within reason. And producers of such items as fruits, nuts and olives, so many kinds of which are grown in Mr. Hoover's own native state of California, could be helped immediately. But that wouldn't be anything for the grain belt to cheer about. That section wants effective protection for what it sells rather than what it buys.

Meanwhile some embarrassment has been occasioned to long-suffering congressmen whose back-home interests seek protection for themselves and want to deny it to others. Shoe manufacturers, for instance, want prohibitive tariffs on shoes and none on hides. Cattle raisers and tanners, of course, are demanding a duty on hides. The congressman who has both shoe factories and tanneries in his district, as some have, is in a bad way.

The wool growers and the manufacturers of woollens solved such a problem long ago by banding together for plenty of protection all around, allowing consumers to pay the bill. It has been charged before the Ways and Means committee that between them they have managed to drive up some rates as high as 387 per cent.

Some New England manufacturers are vigorously protesting the proposed new duties on Egyptian cotton, which they claim they must have. Southern congressmen are seeking a prohibitive duty on Egyptian cotton, but are more than willing to vote a "compensatory" tariff on finished cotton goods with the idea of helping both cotton growers and manufacturers. It's tough, of course, on any manufacturer to whom the long staple Egyptian cotton is essential.

Candy manufacturers want prohibitory duties on candy, claiming increased imports from Germany, France and England since the war.

Rock Island—(AP)—County authorities are seeking clues to the identity of a boy about 3½ years old who was abandoned in a rooming house here three days ago, by a young couple, supposedly his parents, who kept him confined to a room. FRANK CAN'T GO TO STATUE CEREMONY

Dr. John R. Commons Will Represent University at Dedication

Madison—(AP)—The death of Harry S. Richards, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, has prevented Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the university, from going to Washington to attend the dedication of the statue of the late Senator M. LaFollette in Statuary hall Thursday.

Dr. Frank has announced that Dr. John R. Commons, widely known economist, will serve as the official university representative at the unveiling.

Expressing regret that he could not go to Washington, Dr. Frank said of the eminent Badger statesman:

"It is singularly fitting that the university be officially represented at these ceremonies. Senator LaFollette was never a pale neutral. He knew the extremes of affection and of antagonism. In his long political career, a thousand storms of opposition beat about his head. But, however, widely men have differed about this or that political, social, or economic policy he sponsored, there is one phase of his career about which I have never detected a difference of opinion, and that is the part he played, as Governor of this commonwealth, in the development of its university.

"He brought to its problems a statesmanlike vision of a state university as an indispensable instrument of the modern state for the economic betterment of the lives of its citizens.

"With him, the university was never a thing apart from the government, to be supported by the government, but a vital part of the government, a great center of service for the economic betterment of the lives of its citizens.

"With him, the university was never a thing apart from the government, to be supported by the government, but a vital part of the government, a great center of service for the varied interests of the life of the state."

But they are putting up a howl at the proposed increase on sugar duties. The public, as usual, will pay any increased costs or additional profits which are made possible.

The jewelry industry presents a unique case. Most of it is devoted to making medium and cheaper grade products. Imitation stones are made largely in Czechoslovakia; we don't want them here, for some reason. The jewelry manufacturers thus pay 20 to 60 per cent duty on these stones when they import them.

Sad to relate, Czechoslovakia has lately turned to making jewelry as well as stones and has become our principal competitor. Thus the jewelry men are opposed to any increased duty on the stones, but they do ask for increased protection on finished products in which the stones are used.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC ON RAILROADS IS HEAVIER THIS YEAR

Increased Efficiency in Handling Is Boosting Net Income

BY J. C. HORIE
Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press
New York—Railroads of the United States will handle between 5 and 6 per cent more freight traffic in the first half of this year than in 1928. The cost to shippers for handling this freight will exceed four billion dollars. That is the conservative estimate of transportation men who are in touch with conditions. The estimate is based largely on the requirements for cars as outlined by the Shippers' Regional Advisory Boards. More important than this gain, however, is the knowledge that this traffic will be handled more efficiently than ever before. This means a marked gain in net income for the carriers.

The drop in costs due to improved efficiency of management, personnel and methods has been the largest factor in improving the statistical position of the steam roads. For example, in the first two months of 1929 gross revenues of class 1 roads showed a gain of 5.1 per cent but through operating economies this was translated into a 25.3 per cent gain in net operating income.

Increases are expected in shipments of all but seven of the 23 commodities which hold the most important place in freight volume, before the end of this quarter. The drops are expected in commodities such as hay, potatoes, fertilizers, cottonseed and products, livestock, gravel and canned goods. Nearly all districts are expected to develop more freight traffic than they had a year ago.

LOADINGS HOLD UP
Carloadings show no sign as yet of any break in the volume of freight movement. The normal advance in freight movement is being accelerated in loadings of automobiles, grain, coal, iron and steel, agricultural implements and fruits. Passenger traffic has been on the decline but the rate of decline in this department has been checked and the season of heaviest passenger travel is now approaching.

Tourist travel is sure to be heavy this summer. This is due to the widespread prosperity of the country and the habit of travel which is fastening on the American people. The railroads instead of fighting the bus, automobile and airplane trends, are adapting them to their own use running combined rail and bus, or rail and airplane service.

After the middle of the year, the volume of freight carried will depend to a large extent on agricultural and general industrial developments, but the crop movements seem likely to be heavy, since in most sections outside the southeast, the weather conditions have been fairly favorable and the total acreage planted high.

The days of the old car shortage bugaboo are gone. They have been eliminated by the Shippers' Advisory Boards, to the cooperation of which the carriers owe much of their present-day profits.

The equipment of the roads is probably in the best shape it ever has reached. The managers of the carriers have found that it pays in dollars and cents to keep equipment up to the mark and this has been thoroughly impressed on working forces. As a result, railroads have not had to buy so much new equipment. But when new equipment is needed it will be bought both more freely and more promptly than ever in the past.

The improvement in efficiency of the individual roads has been so

EAU CLAIRE MAN IS ON PHARMACY BOARD

Madison—(AP)—Gov. Kohler Tuesday announced the appointment of Edward Boberg, Eau Claire, as a member of the state board of pharmacy to succeed himself for a term of 5 years, expiring April 12, 1934. Mr. Boberg was appointed in January, 1926, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, Otto J. S. Boberg.

CHICAGO FEELING RESULT OF RECENT ORGY IN SPENDING

Voters Refuse to Approve Bond Issues for Needed Improvements

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
(Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press.)
Chicago—Cities which have been spending money during recent years something in the manner of drunken sailors, now can learn a lesson by looking at Chicago.

Not only is this city hard up, owing to extravagance, but the voting public has been refusing regularly to vote bond issues that would relieve this condition. As a result, according to a survey just made, nearly $500,000,000 in public improvements now are held up, awaiting a change in administration.

The Chicago situation is considered symptomatic of that in other municipalities where tax spending bodies have gone along blithely, using bond money and raising tax rates to meet the increased expense. A sudden rebellion of tax-payers catches the government with an empty treasury.

Locally, the government is without

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fairhaven, Mass.—"I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during the Change of Life. When I feel nervous and run-down my husband gets me a bottle right away. It is great help to me and I think that if other people would only take it when they feel all run-down and take it as the directions say, they would find it a great benefit. My worst symptoms were nervousness and tired feelings. I could not sleep nights and I was so nervous I would cry if anyone looked at me."—Mrs. ADA BESSE, 196 Washington Street, Fairhaven, Mass.

The president of the school board announced that there would be a deficit this year in his department of $50,000. He declared that a boost in taxes would be necessary if schools are to open again next September.

Already $50,000,000 has been afforded the city and the school board to meet salaries, through cooperation of New York and Chicago banks. This money is raised through tax anticipation warrants, running for one year and bearing a 6 per cent interest rate.

But only salary requirements are provided for and other needs still are going begging. At the same time the city is learning a lesson in financial management soon be forgotten. Its experience is considered a fore-runner of that of other municipalities which have spent lavishly during late years, without keeping an eye on the day of reckoning.

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"Well, Sport, here's where we go back to the neck and gilet diet."

Air Operators Point Out Best Equipment To Use

Washington—(P)—The perfecting of apparatus for aircraft use has been one of the biggest problems in the entire field of radio design and development.

To assist the engineers in the work, air transport operators of the country, preparing to inaugurate extensive use of radio, have compiled a list of requirements for the development and manufacture of equipment.

The varying conditions under which operations are maintained at present call for three separate forms of power supply, the operators say. These are wind driven generators, engine driven generators and dynamotors. The maximum supply from these so far as is known is 1,000 volts, supplying 500 milliamperes and 15 volts and 15 amperes on the low side. Voltage regulation of all these units shall be within plus or minus 2 per cent.

Microphones should be developed for both open and closed planes. In the open plane, construction should be such that when in position the pilot can move about the cockpit freely, even projecting his head over the side, without leaving the microphone. Operation must be maintained when the pilot wears a mask and in extremely cold weather.

Light, noise-excluding head sets, which can be worn for protracted periods without causing discomfort, should be developed. While it is impractical to designate specific dimensions, all radio equipment and accessories should be as compact and light as is consistent with acceptable operation. The aircraft men point out.

The receiver should be of a unit control type adapted for either manual or remote control, using standard commercial vacuum tubes and is to have an input level of ten microvolts giving an output of ten volts of 6,000 kilocycles. The transmitter should be so constructed that it has an operating range of 2 to 1 in wavelength.

It is emphasized that equipment must function during the maneuvering of the ship and through sudden jolts and all weather conditions such as heavy rain, sleet, snow and high wind. Temperature variations must be accommodated over wide ranges in short periods of time.

CANADA GRAIN FIELDS ON SHORT RAIL ROUTE

Winnipeg—(P)—Hudson's Bay railway, now being constructed by the Canadian government, will shorten effectively the distance between the grain fields of western Canada and the markets of Europe.

From Saskatoon to Liverpool via the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence, the distance is 4,573 miles, but by the new railroad to Churchill it is only 3,733 miles. It is 5,224 miles from Edmonton to Liverpool by way of the St. Lawrence and only 4,132 miles by rail to Churchill.

The shorter haul and consequently lower costs and quicker delivery, is expected to give Canadian wheat farmers an advantage in the world market.

WAUPACA COUNTY NEW LONDON-CLINTONVILLE-WAUPACA NEARBY TOWNS

HOSPITAL GROUP BEGINS CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS

Plans for Fourth of July Celebration Also Started by Auxiliary

New London — A concentrated drive for new members for the hospital auxiliary and public card party to be given on Monday evening next week at the Catholic Parish hall will lead to a series of activities toward the realization of a fund to be used toward New London's proposed new hospital. The plans for a Fourth of July celebration to be sponsored by the same order were also launched, and the meeting was a clearing house for ideas of how the plans should be carried out.

A talk upon the status of the present hospital was given by E. C. Jost, president of the board of the Community hospital. Mr. Jost wished prospective members who might interest themselves in the organization to know that there is no debt to be cleared before continuing with building plans. He explained the original plans of the project, beginning in 1922, and asserted that at the time of turning over the equipment to the Sisters of St. Joseph, equipment valued at approximately $5,000 had been paid for through the efforts of the auxiliary and the board of directors. Mr. Jost referred also to the standard equipment and furnishings that had been purchased pointing out that ten beds and considerable fittings would be entirely suitable for the new building.

The Rev. Kolbe described his recent meeting with the bishop of the diocese at Green Bay. While it is the bishop's hope as well as the sisters' that the proposed plans may materialize. The Rev. Kolbe stated that much will have to be accomplished by the people of the city before the decision can be reached. Larger cities than New London, it was pointed out, are anxious to see the sisters' talents at hospital management and without concentrated effort from all sides this city stands more than a chance of losing out in the project. However, continued the speaker, New London profits in that the sisters of St. Joseph are here, willing to work and anxious to continue if the support is given.

The meeting was very well attended and a fine spirit of cooperation and interest is apparent. The meeting was directed by Mrs. J. M. Monsted, president of the order. Mrs. P. E. Pfeiffer spoke informally upon what the recent trip to Hartford had accomplished.

CAT EATS CHEESE AND GETS HOOKED ON FISHING LINE

Special to Post-Crescent
New London — The cat who would a fishing go came to grief recently and will be a wiser cat from now on. Randolph Sager found the cat thrashing about among the brush at the edge of the flood waters of the Wolf river. Thinking that it had a piece of wire in its mouth the boy went home and returned with his father. With the wire cutters Mr. Sager approached the cat, which instead of becoming wild seemed glad of the friendly attention offered. Mr. Sager found that a portion of cheese had been used to bait a hook on a set-line and the hungry cat, seizing upon it had run the barb through the side of its mouth. By cutting off the barb the hook was easily removed and the cat returned to freedom.

There has been considerable discussion regarding the forming of a permanent Cemetery Association for the perpetual upkeep of Bovina cemetery.

If each lot owner would place a small sum on deposit the interest accruing would create a perpetual source of revenue and insure the permanent care of all lots, it was pointed out. An expression of the sentiment of those interested, at this Memorial day service is asked to determine whether such an organization would be desired.

MANY BADGER FOLKS TO SEE UNVEILING OF BOB'S STATUE

Ceremonies Will Be Conducted at Washington Next Thursday

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent's Washington Bureau)
Washington—Many Wisconsin people, as well as admirers of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette from all over the country, are expected in Washington for the ceremonies on Thursday, attendant upon the unveiling of the La Follette statue in Statuary Hall of the Capitol.

With the unveiling of the La Follette statue, Wisconsin completes her quota in the nation's Hall of Fame. Pere Marquette, explorer, being Wisconsin's other statue in that vast, overcrowded circle of the Capitol.

Two bills have already been introduced in Congress to authorize a separate building for a Hall of Fame in which the states may place their statues dedicated as tributes to their most distinguished sons.

The La Follette statue arrived in New York City from France in January, and was on exhibition in the Anderson galleries there for some time before being sent on to Washington. Washingtonians have not seen the Jo Davidson interpretation of Senator La Follette as the great statue of the Senator has been unveiled since its arrival in the capital inauguration week. It is one of the largest figures in Statuary Hall and is now placed in front of Wisconsin's other statue, that of Marquette, facing the East. It is covered with a great American flag, which will not be removed until the statue is unveiled in the ceremonies next Thursday.

The ceremonies will begin at 2 p. m. Chairs will be placed all through Statuary Hall for the guests at the unveiling and a small platform will be placed beside the statue for the speakers.

Washington still remembers the vast crowd which gathered in the Senate galleries to hear the Senate's tribute to Senator La Follette one Sunday morning. All too frequently very few people except the families of the deceased and the senators and congressmen from their states assemble to hear the Senate's last tributes to one of its members who has died. But when the Senate assembled on a Sunday morning to pay tribute to Wisconsin's statesman, the floor and the galleries were packed to capacity.

It is expected that similar crowds will assemble in the crowded space among the marble statues to see the La Follette statue unveiled.

Little Princess Elizabeth's Visit Aids Recovery Of English Monarch

BY MILTON BRONNER

London—All the King's doctors and all the King's men couldn't have put England's monarch so happily on the road to recovery as a little 3-year-old girl has done.

As a result the darling of the British public's loyal heart is Princess Elizabeth, third lady of this land—she is preceded in rank only by her grandmother, Queen Mary, and by her mother, the Duchess of York—and here's the way it came about:

King George is making his slow recovery to normal strength and health at Craigwell House down at Bognor. But time hangs heavily on his hands. He never has been a great reader or student. He is being spared the perusal of bundles of state papers, which used to take up so much of his days. He got "fed up" with simply sitting in an invalid's chair in the sun room and looking out at the sea.

THE KING WAS BORED
They brought down from Buckingham Palace his best crystal set, so he could listen in. And they brought his best phonograph with all his favorite records. Also they fetched his favorite pet parrot.

But it was all to no avail. The king was bored, plainly bored. Then came a happy thought. The Duke and Duchess of York were going to Norway to attend the wedding of the Crown Prince of that country. They would send Princess Elizabeth down to Craigwell House to prattle to her grandfather.

The King has always been fond of children. Princess Elizabeth and he are tremendous pals and she is now just at the age when she says many delightful things.

For instance, there is a yarn being passed around the upper circles which shows that the little Princess is not going to suffer boredom without a protest.

A FRANK DISMISSAL

A very important woman called at the home of the Duke and Duchess of York. While waiting to see the Duchess, at her own request, she was ushered into the play rooms of the Princess. She asked a few banal questions, then the little girl popped to the end of the strings and a long and painful silence ensued. Whereupon the Princess rang the bell. When a servant came, she said: "This lady wants to go home."

The little girl was carefully coached before she went to Bognor. "Ganpa" had been sick. "Ganpa" would not be well enough to play "bears" with her, one of their favorite romping games. But that was all right. She had lots to tell him. There was Christmas, for instance. "Ganpa" had been ill then, so she had news about the new additions to her nursery family. And she took the King in on a tremendous secret. It seems that one of her nurses had finally explained to her that she had a very exalted rank. She summed it up for "Ganpa" in a sentence:

FIRST VISIT TO SEA

"Me Lisbeth—Princess."
Then the little girl looked out of the window and she had lots to discuss with "Ganpa." It was the first time in her life that she had seen the sea and the fogs on it and the strand of fine sand on its shores. These things gave rise to endless questions which "Ganpa" could answer because he used to be a sailor.

So the King spent happy hours trying to convey to her child mind how much water there is in the sea and what strange fish live in it and what big ships it bears on its waves.

"GANNA" WENT SHOPPING

The sand intrigued Elizabeth so much that the very next day "Ganpa" went down to Bognor and shopped just like any other woman. She bought various molds, and a little tile pail and shovel, and that afternoon when the sun was warmest, the little Princess with one of her nurses spent a happy hour on the sands.

That led to more excited conversations with "Ganpa" the next day, and everyone at Bognor says she has been the best tonic the King has had during all his long, dangerous illness.

SCOUTS SEEK RECORD IN REFORESTATION

Hope to Surpass Last Year's Mark of 1,000,000 Planting Trees

The record of 1,000,000 trees planted by boy scouts last year in reforestation projects throughout the country will be surpassed this year, according to advanced reports received here by M. G. Clark, valley scout executive, from the National council offices in New York.

Last year valley council scout Troops 3 and 11 planted over 600 trees here, 115 of them at Camp Chickasaw, valley scout camp on Lake Winnebago. Other trees were planted in city parks.

The largest single tree planting project already reported was started April 6 at Grays Harbor, Wash., when 100 boy scouts began the planting of 100,000 fir trees on a tract near the Olympic National forest. The work was supervised by H. L. Plumb, state forest supervisor. The chamber of commerce Gray Harbor aided the scouts by furnishing transportation for the trees and planting implements.

Hundreds of other councils throughout the United States have adopted reforestation as one of their major projects, and it is expected the valley council will endeavor to surpass its last year's record, according to Mr. Clark. Local scouts probably will soon start their work by transplanting the nine trees planted at the scout camp last summer.

From one banker to another—
"The car to buy is CHRYSLER"

A certain prominent banker heard that another banker, a good friend of his, was considering the purchase of a new motor car.

Impelled by a friendly desire to be helpful, the first banker took the time and trouble to write the letter from which we quote:

"I now have my second Chrysler," the letter reads. "Both the Chrysler '72' and '75' have shown more ability than any of the other cars I have ever owned. And, too, ability of more than one kind.

"The Chrysler has roadability. In traffic congestion or on the open road, it is both spry and safe.

"It has durability. Out of four cents per mile that I set aside in a special fund for tires, repairs, replacements, insurance, taxes, license, and depreciation, I found, after paying the difference between my car and the new one, I had $116 left of this special fund.

"It has dependability. There was never a time when I was delayed a single minute (and you know I travel on a rigid schedule), in keeping my appointments or making my destination as per program.

"And last, but by no means least, especially when we are buying for our good wives, it has respectability. I think my daughter expressed the feminine mind when she said: 'When driving or riding in the Chrysler, one feels toward it very much the same as one does about cultured or refined people; just naturally liking to be seen with them.'

"This message is neither an advertisement nor a testimonial, it is simply appreciation of a splendid piece of high-class merchandise."

Acting on this strong recommendation—plus his own knowledge of Chrysler prestige—the other banker bought a Chrysler.
